Obscenity Curbs 'Likely Doomed'

By WES ALBERS
Star Staff Writer

Attempts to suppress pornography in today's atmosphere of more liberal sexual behavior are "likely doomed to fail," a former consultant to the President's Commission on Obscenity and Pornography said Thursday.

Michael Goldstein, a professor of clinical psychology at the University of California-Los Angeles, said that every society "imposes its own limitations on human sexuality."

"If the values change, you can't very well suppress the stimuli," he told approximately 125 students at the University of Nebraska's Law College. "It doesn't make sense to suppress stimuli unless you can prove they lead to some dangers."

Goldstein was the fourth of seven speakers at a two-day conference on law-psychology research sponsored by the Law College and the Psychology Department. The remaining three speak today.

The dangers many people fear — social decay, a negative effect on the sexual development of children and harmful influences on sex offenders or those with atypical sexual behavior — have not been supported by research, Goldstein said.

"We really don't know that all societies decay. They may be like the universe — an infinitely expandable thing," he said in an interview. "You're not going to stop social decay by controlling pornography."

Pornography does not appear to have bad effects on the personality and sexual adjustment of children exposed to it in preadolescence "if it is handled sensibly," he said.

Goldstein said his children once walked into a pastry store in Denmark, which does not control pornography, and were exposed to sexually explicit magazines.

When they told their father about it, they expressed amusement and a negative reaction — "my daughter's reaction sounded a bit like her reaction to spinach."

Goldstein said he watched his children closely the next few days to see how the experience affected them.

"They kept saying, 'Why are you looking at me?'" he said. "There might have been other outcomes in more critical environments."

Goldstein said there is not enough evidence to determine whether pornography has damaging side effects for those with abnormal sexual behavior, but "there is not much evidence so far that it does."

It is possible that free access to pornography would satisfy the needs of potential sex offenders, Goldstein said. He said sex crimes have decreased 30% since Denmark stopped controlling pornography.

Goldstein himself prefers "limited access" to pornography "so children can't just go out and see it" as his did in Denmark.

"The solution of limited access to erotica as used in the United States is a reasonable compromise," he said.

DAS Says State Should Manage Securities

By BOB GUENTHER

State Department of Administrative Services (DAS) officials say the state has the capability to manage its $160 million securities portfolio, a job State Treasurer Frank Marsh has given the National Bank of Commerce (NBC).

DAS officials in interviews said Marsh never asked them whether the state's accounting and computer systems could meet the task.

Consequently, DAS Director Stan Matzke questioned how Marsh decided NBC could do the job more efficiently than the state.

Marsh and State Investment Officer Don Mathes stand behind the agreement with NBC, saying the arrangement is in the state's best interests.

'System More Efficient'
In my opinion, the present system (with NBC) is more efficient and will save the state money in the long run," Mathes said Thursday.

The disagreement centers on a decision Marsh made this past June to transfer management of $160 million in state securities, representing various retirement funds, from the treasurer's office to NBC.

Marsh said the volume of work needed to keep track of securities' dividends and maturity dates was greater than his office staff could handle without the aid of computers.

Consequently, an agreement was negotiated with NBC acting as custodian for the securities.

In return, the state maintains $115,000 in a non-interest bearing account at NBC.

Sold Best Offer

Marsh said the NBC offer is the best he could find and advantageous to the state. He did not indicate what other institutions were considered for the job.

Rebound Of GNP Predicted

Washington (UPI) — Top government economists and White House officials Thursday predicted the nation's output of goods and services for the last three months rose at an "extremely high annual rate" of 10% or more.

The predictions indicate that economic recovery from the recent recession is stronger than was previously anticipated but in line with similar rebounds from past recessions.

The Commerce Department will release the third quarter real Gross National Product Monday and experts say according to the latest economic indicators the GNP should make the largest upturn since the last quarter of 1972.

Speaking to the economic outlook conference in Anaheim, Calif., Assistant Commerce Secretary James L. Pate supported a promise by President Ford that Americans would soon receive some "very encouraging" economic news.

"Stripping away the effects of inflation, this report is expected to show that real output grew during the July-September period by an extremely high annual rate of 9 to 10% — or perhaps even higher," Pate said.

But Pate, the Commerce Department's top economist, cautioned that the statistics could be misleading.

"To a large extent, this rebound will reflect a sharp slowing in the rate of inventory liquidation (the selling off of stockpiled goods) and will overstate the underlying strength of the economic recovery."

In Washington, administration officials backed Pate's forecast.

"The figures will show the economy is recovering even better than we had expected," one White House aide said.

Another aide said an increase of about 10% would lift the GNP over the $850 billion mark for the third quarter and show beyond a doubt that the nation is regaining economic health after a 15-month tailspin, the longest and worst decline since the great depression.

A Commerce Department official said that although an increase of this magnitude is encouraging, in comparison with other recessions, "it's not unusual."

"There has been a big quarter increase in the GNP after every recession," he said. "It's a rebound effect. The growth rate should be more stable next year."

Another Commerce Department spokesman said recent inventory, consumer price and export-import reports point to a "rather strong rebound" in the GNP for the third quarter.

He agreed that the GNP growth rate will be "around 10%" or over five times the 1.9% rise in the second quarter, but will largely reflect a slowdown inventory liquidation.

A Treasury official said he expected the Monday figure to be "a big number," and added that the rise should "refute the kind of pessimism you heard earlier this year" about the strength of the recovery.

Agencies Submit Budget Cut Plans

By The Associated Press

John Jacobson, Gov. J. James Exon's chief budget officer, said Thursday that all agencies of state government have submitted proposals for cutting their budgets by 3% except the University of Nebraska, the state colleges and the Legislative Council.

Jacobson said the agencies were called Wednesday morning and told to propose a 3% budget cut or face an across-the-board reduction.

He said the agencies were allowed to distribute the cut among the various programs they supervise.

Jacobson said the only agency which would not lose 3% of its appropriations in the legislation Gov. J. James Exon is preparing is the Department of Corrections. He said the department has had an unexpected increase in prisoners.

Kearney State College President Brendan J. McDonald said Thursday he did not meet the "phenomenal, if not impossible, task" assigned to him by Exon's staff.

In a news conference announcing a special session of the legislature, Exon said Wednesday the 3% cut would save the state $7 million.

A spokesman for McDonald said the four college presidents were notified by telephone late Wednesday morning to present to the governor's office by noon Thursday proposals for 3% cuts in the institutions' budgets.

McDonald said the presidents have no authority to make any changes in the budgets, noting that authority rests with the State College Board of Trustees.

The board Thursday canceled its October meeting at Wayne State College and said it will not meet again until Nov. 21 in Kearney.

McDonald said it normally takes six to nine months to draft a total budget for the college.

He said 80% of the Kearney State budget is tied up in salary contracts, with the remaining 20% assigned to fixed expenses such as utilities and maintenance.

He said to comply with the governor's call for a 3% cut, the four colleges would have had to chop $364,500 from their budgets by noon Thursday, including $155,000 from the Kearney State College budget alone.

"The four state colleges in Nebraska would be rendered almost inoperable if they were forced to cut their general fund portion of their budget by 3% at this late date," said Dr. William Colwell of Chadron, president of the board of trustees of Nebraska state colleges.

Colwell said that the trustees have long made it a practice to submit a minimum and realistic budget to the legislature and governor, and that the current budget is below what many observers feel is essential.

Keyes To Introduce Corporate Tax Plan

Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield said Thursday he plans to introduce legislation in the upcoming special session to increase the corporate income tax on income in excess of $25,000 a year.

Earlier this year state senators jockeyed back and forth over an increase in the corporate income tax rate. A bill raising it to 30% of the individual income tax rate for corporate income exceeding $25,000 a year was repealed and a 27 1/2% rate was substituted.

Keyes said Thursday in an interview that he will introduce a bill to boost that back to 30%.

"The governor's call (for the special session beginning Oct. 22) is broad enough," Keyes said.

In addition, Keyes said he will introduce a bill to cut state spending for all state agencies by 3%, the same amount suggested by Gov. J. James Exon. Such a bill failed to pass during the regular session.

"There would be no reason for this mess, if we had taken the bull by the horns during the regular session," Keyes said, referring to an anticipated $10 million cash flow problem in January.

"Unless spending is cut, we're going to have a 3% sales tax and a 17% income tax next year," he said.

Keyes also has plans for a third bill to change payment dates of aid to cities and counties from a semi-annual to a quarterly basis. He would also give the state Department of Administrative Services a 45-day discretionary period to make the payments.

Regarding the special session, Keyes said he expects an early move by some senators to recess or adjourn without acting on the governor's proposals.

If that fails, he predicted the Legislature "then would get down to business."

Uncertain Future Awaits Refugees

Agana, Guam (UPI) — A merchant ship carrying 1,546 Vietnamese sailed for South Vietnam Thursday without any word on whether or not the Communist government will allow the refugees to come back home.

A North Vietnamese broadcast quoted Hanoi's official newspaper Nhan Dan as calling the U.S. decision to repatriate the refugees an "adventurous and irresponsible action fraught with serious consequences." But neither the agency nor the newspaper gave any indication whether the refugees would be permitted to land.

The PRG criticized the United States for allowing the vessel to sail without the concurrence of the new regime in Vietnam.

A petition from the repatriates in September described their frustration at being separated from their families as the major reason they wanted to return to Vietnam.

They left with the "blessings" of the people of Guam, who had made it clear the Vietnamese had worn out their welcome in this American territory because of acts of violence and references to Guam as a "devil's island."

Demonstrations by the refugees and demands by the local government all but forced the U.S. authorities to give in to refugee plans to take the ship back to Vietnam.

The ship was fueled and provisioned for a 30-day voyage, although the estimated sailing time to Vietnam is 10 days.

Mathes said the primary reason for going with NBC was the broad experience the bank has in the securities field.

Officials Not Consulted

Although he never asked DAS officials, Mathes said he concluded DAS could not do the job. He said he based his conclusion on communications with people in the auditor's office, Investment Council and DAS' accounting division.

It was a matter of security, (computer) machinery and personnel," Mathes said.

Both DAS data processing chief Ernest Kovaly and accounting division chief George Shure said there is "no question" DAS has the capability to manage the securities. And both said Marsh never discussed the possibility with them.

Asked if the state could manage the securities more efficiently than the NBC agreement, Kovaly said he couldn't answer without knowing the number of transactions involved, the frequency of updates and the like.

Programming Required

The data processing division presently runs 6-7 computer programs at one time. To put the security portfolio management scheme on the system would require scheduling and designing a program, Kovaly said.

Regarding security, Kovaly said in 9 years, the division has never released information to unauthorized parties.

Mathes, however, said DAS does not have the experience needed to manage the securities portfolio.

The NBC agreement, Mathes said, gives the state "a great deal more flexibility" to do the securities management function as it should be done.

Ervin, Baker Against Amending Constitution

Washington (UPI) — Siding with Watergate prosecutors, former Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., said Thursday he too believes that former President Richard M. Nixon could have been indicted without first having been impeached.

But both Ervin and Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., who were chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, sharply disagreed with a prosecutors' recommendation that the Constitution be amended to provide for the criminal prosecution of a President.

"There's no basis for the notion that a President has to be impeached before you prosecute him," said Ervin, an acknowledged constitutional scholar, in a telephone interview from his Morgan- ton, N.C., home.

"I'm very reluctant to add anything to the Constitution . . . we got along without prosecuting a President for almost 200 years and there's no need to amend the Constitution for something that may not happen for another 200 years."

Watergate prosecutors, in a 277-page report to Congress and the nation Wednesday, said they believed Nixon could have been charged in the cover-up but did not indict him for fear of triggering a constitutional crisis that might have impeded his impeachment.

They recommended that the Constitution — which is silent on whether a President may be charged with a crime prior to impeachment — be amended to clarify the situation.

Baker, in Huntsville, Tenn., agreed with Ervin. "I don't think you need a constitutional amendment," he said. "I think the constitutional process is express, clear and adequate."

Ervin said he felt all three special prosecutors — Archibald Cox, Leon Jaworski and Henry Ruth — did an "exceptional job" though there "should have been a little more investigation" of illegal corporate donations to Nixon's re-election campaign.

But Ruth, in his last day on the job, told UPI there were a number of areas investigated where criminal action was found yet could not be prosecuted.

Morocco colonized it in 1884, but these were based more on ties to the nomadic Saharan tribesmen than to the land.

Morocco's claims to the phosphate-rich northern part of the territory are opposed by Spain and Algeria, both of which demand a referendum among the Sahara's nomadic population of 80,000 that could lead to independence.

Mauritania wants the southern and western parts of Sahara.

The dispute has brought combat-ready troops of Algeria, Spain and Morocco to the territory's borders.

King Hassan said his marchers — one tenth of whom would be women — would be unarmed and would not fight back if fired on by Spanish troops. But he indicated the Moroccan army would protect the marchers against possible attacks by Algerians.

In a nationwide television address, the king said recruiting offices would be opened throughout his kingdom on Friday and he would be "the first volunteer." He did not say when the march would begin.

All Moroccan factories, offices and schools had been closed in anticipation of the king's response to the International Court's decision. Immediately after his speech, demonstrators marched through the country's major cities proclaiming support for the march.

Washington — The United States has suggested to Syria that President Ford would like to confer with President Hafez al-Assad in Europe next month before or after Ford attends a Western economic meeting in France. The Syrians have not replied to the month-old informal offer, but some Ford administration officials are still hopeful that Assad will accept it.

Kenyatta Alienates People

Nairobi — President Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya has governed better than most African leaders, but he faces mounting public discontent. He has helped to build a solvent and, until recently relative free society, in which steady economic growth has produced increased prosperity. However, in recent years Kenyatta has alienated more and more Kenyans by abuses of power, by amassing a fortune and by moving to stifle development of a freer society in his East African nation.

Industrial Output Rises

Washington — The Federal Reserve Board reported Thursday that the nation's economic recovery has been much sharper than expected. The board reported that industrial production rose more in September than it had in the previous four months of gains. The increase in output was 1% — the biggest advance in one month since November 1964, when output rebounded after an auto strike was settled.

Jobless On Benefits Reaches Year's Low

Washington (UPI) — About 5.4 million persons were receiving unemployment insurance benefits during the week ending Sept. 27, a new low since the start of emergency jobless programs last January, the Labor Department said Thursday.

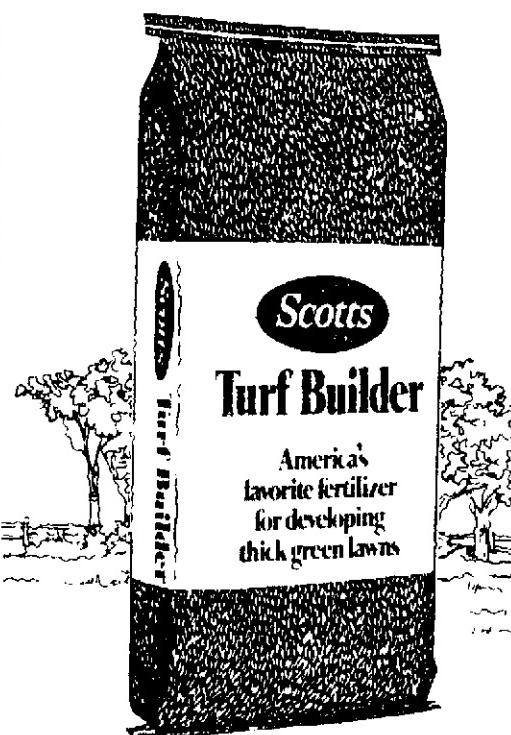

It was the third straight week the total number of persons receiving unemployment benefits declined, this time by a total of 81,600 persons, the department said.

Initial claims, however, were 398,600 — an increase of 25,200 — during the week of Oct. 4, the department said.

In January, when the government instituted three new programs to extend unemployment benefits to more people and for a longer period, about 5.5 million persons were receiving them.

The figure grew steadily until it peaked at 6.5 million during the week ending March 8. It has been declining steadily ever

Campbells know . . .

Your lawn needs feeding right now even more than it did last spring!

In the fall, your lawn is going through its most important growth cycle. It's trying to develop the vital root structure it needs for the following year, and to thicken itself by sending out new grass shoots. The better your lawn is fed, the better it can develop. So right now, a feeding of Scotts TURF BUILDER® (with iron) is especially important. It provides the long-lasting, high-nitrogen feeding that makes lawns thrive. Prove it to yourself during Scotts Lawn Improvement Sale!

Three U.S. Scientists Awarded Nobel Prize

Stockholm, Sweden (UPI) — Three Americans who discovered how viruses may cause malignant tumors in humans won the 1975 Nobel Prize in medicine Thursday for accomplishing "a giant step in cancer research." Sweden's Karolinska Institute awarded the $143,000 prize to David Baltimore, 37, Howard Martin Temin, 41, and Renato Dulbecco, 61, all veteran cancer researchers, "for their discoveries concerning the interaction between tumor viruses and the genetic material of the cell."

Baltimore is a specialist in microbiology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and currently visiting scientist at the Rockefeller University in New York City where he received his doctorate. Temin is an expert in the field of oncology (the study of tumors) at the University of Wisconsin, and Dulbecco is a cell researcher at the Imperial Cancer Research Fund Laboratory in London.

"They have found different effects and circumstances which cause cancer," Prof. Peter Reichard, a member of the Swedish institute, said. "They have not come up with any new methods for treating cancer, but their discoveries are still considered a giant step in cancer research."

May Cause Tumors

The institute said, "Viruses causing tumors in humans have not been found, except for warts. These types of tumors are of a benign nature, but it seems likely that viruses will prove to be engaged in the production of certain serious (malignant) tumors in humans."

"The three winners have found a basis for studying and working on this relationship."

As American Cancer Society research professors, Temin and Baltimore have salaries guaranteed into the 21st century — Temin's until 2004 and Baltimore's until 2003.

They will collect their Nobel Prize in Stockholm Dec. 10.

Temin said in Madison, Wis., he was "overwhelmed, proud and honored" by the award.

"There are cures for certain fast growing cancers, certain specific types of cancers, but as yet no known cures for the majority of cancers which actually cause human death," he said.

"We are working continually — many people — to try and develop better means of therapy for cancer, but now there's a general belief that we would have much more influence on human cancer if we could prevent it."

Stop Smoking

"And so, if people would stop smoking cigarettes and there were less cancer causing chemicals put out into the environment, this would be the most efficient way of preventing cancer."

In London, Italian-born Dulbecco who became a U.S. citizen in 1953 said of the prize, "It's great, fantastic, wonderful. But it was a great surprise."

"I showed that the genetic material of cancer-causing viruses, their DNA, becomes incorporated in the DNA of the cell," Dulbecco said.

DNA is the ribbon-like molecule within the cell — the famous "double helix" — which holds the code of life that determines whether a cell will develop into a man or an animal.

Alters DNA

Dulbecco said the virus DNA alters the DNA of the host cell. "Once it is there, it remains there forever, so that all the progeny of the cell have the same altered characteristics."

Dulbecco said Temin was one of his graduate students at the California Institute of Technology in the 1950s.

Reichard said Baltimore "found an enzyme that creates virus proteins in the cell."

"This theory was introduced in 1970 at a cancer congress in Houston," Reichard said. "It met with skepticism at first, but then caused a revolution."

Compromise Made In New Credit Rules

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board, choosing a generally even compromise between the demands of women and creditors, Thursday proposed final rules forbidding creditors from discriminating against applicants because of sex or marital status.

The rules, written and revised twice this year to implement the equal credit opportunity act that goes into effect Oct. 28, were designed to outlaw many old techniques that deny credit to working women — including the practice of asking about birth control.

Credit experts generally agreed the final rules made more concessions to the women's demands than a previous proposal published last Sept. 8. But they cited numerous "loopholes" favoring creditors.

Federal Reserve Board Governor Jeffrey M. Bucher indicated the agency would continue to listen to the counter demands of women and creditors. "Just because we've put out these final regs doesn't mean we're through," he said.

Linda Cohen, credit expert for the National Organization for Women, called Bucher's statement an "invitation" and decided, "We certainly intend to complain like hell about the things we don't like."

The major dispute centers on a provision that creditors must explain — not necessarily in writing — the reasons for denying credit to an applicant who requests such an explanation.

The first proposed regulations issued last April 23 required a written statement of reasons for denial. But the September draft dropped that requirement, prompting a cry of outrage from a group of congresswomen.

The women still insist the law cannot be enforced without written statements and they note this rule also does not require the creditors to inform applicants of their right to such a statement.

Better Budget Way

Whether Gov. James Exon is right or wrong in calling a special session of the Legislature and whether senators do anything or not in that session, it ought to be obvious that this state has a lousy setup from a fiscal management point of view. The Legislature appropriates money at one time, taxes are set on a calendar year basis and spending is on a fiscal year basis.

Additionally, we have all sorts of nonsensical things such as the Board of Equalization setting the tax rate while senators determine spending figures. Also, we have a requirement that the sales and income tax be maintained at relatively equal levels in terms of the revenue they produce.

How anybody can make any sense out of all this is hard to understand, even under the best of conditions. But add to it the fact that a lot of politics is played in the Legislature, in the governor's office and on the Board of Equalization and you have a situation that is next to impossible.

This November, the board will meet to set the 1976 income and sales tax rates. It will set the rates for calendar 1976 while those rates produce funds that will be used to help finance the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Popping Up Is No Joke

In submitting a report detailing much of the Watergate prosecution business, Special Prosecutor Henry W. Ruth Jr. says the demand for the release of more evidence of Richard Nixon's wrongdoing stems from fears the former president will re-emerge as a major public figure.

"That's what everybody is worried about, isn't it, a second coming," Ruth said in an apparent sarcastic vein. "Somehow people think this gentleman, Mr. Nixon, is going to pop up again."

Of course some people think he is going to pop up again — why shouldn't they? He's popped up again all through a notorious, unsavory political career. If there is one thing even Nixon's most earnest critics can agree upon, it is that he is admirably tenacious and resilient. He is an adversary hard to keep down.

We keep hearing with each new chapter — such as the release of this report — that Watergate is finally over.

We're not so sure it should be finally over and we wonder, along with Sen. Lowell Weicker, if America really learned anything from it.

If anything was learned it may be that some people in high places can conduct themselves scandalously, even criminally, and still make their getaway with comparative grace, with only another black mark on their reputation as punishment.

RONALD REAGAN

Betting Against Sakharov

In the 1950s Russian physicist Andrei Sakharov was known as the "father" of the Soviet Union's hydrogen bomb. Today, he is known as the winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize.

It's been a long, difficult and courageous road for the man who now ranks alongside Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn as a champion for human rights in the Soviet Union.

Solzhenitsyn was expelled from the USSR early last year, but Sakharov continues to speak out for amnesty for Soviet political prisoners with a courage which soon may earn him the same fate.

As early as 1958, Sakharov's misgivings about the awesome consequences of nuclear warfare led him to circulate "Samizdat" (literally, "self-publishing"), calling for a ban on nuclear testing.

If you read Solzhenitsyn's monumental "Gulag Archipelago," you know that a Soviet citizen does not do such things lightly, for it can easily lead to a 10-year sentence in a concentration camp, followed by years of exile.

Sakharov continued, however, and made a personal appeal to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in 1961. It was ignored. Five years later, he took a further step. He participated publicly in a one-minute vigil for human rights. He was fired from his high post in the Soviet nuclear program.

But the fact he wasn't arrested showed that the Kremlin was concerned that harsher reprisals against such an outspoken public figure might trigger even more protests against repression.

In 1968 his book, "Progress, Peace, Coexistence and Intellectual Freedom," was published in the West, but circulated only in "Samizdat" form inside the USSR.

Now, the Nobel Prize Committee has cited him for his "fearless effort in the cause of peace among mankind," for his warning "against the dangers connected with the bogus detente, based on wishful thinking and illusions," and for his fight "not only against the abuse of power and violations of human dignity in all its forms, but . . . for the ideal of a state founded on a principle of justice for all."

All that Sakharov stands for contradicts the Soviet system, with its denial of human rights, punishment for dissenters, intimidation and the use of fear.

Despite its love of propaganda as a weapon to advance the Marxist cause, the USSR has a clumsy track record in handling its most famous citizens who dissent. When Boris Pasternak won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1958, the Soviets pressured him into turning it down, an act which simply underscored their heavy-handedness. Solzhenitsyn won in 1970 but couldn't go to Oslo to receive it for fear of being unable to return home.

Following their expulsion of Solzhenitsyn last year, the Soviets launched a continuous propaganda barrage to discredit him. It has had the opposite effect.

His own compelling testimony on Soviet repression and his profound moral stand about human freedom simply have been verified by the shrill propaganda.

The betting in Oslo is that Sakharov won't be allowed to pick up his prize, since the very awarding of it by the committee will appear to the thin-skinned Soviet regime to be a criticism of its repressive nature. And it is.

(Note: The courageous writings of Soviet dissenters in "Samizdat" form are collected and published in English several times a year by the Samizdat Bulletin, P.O. Box 6128, San Mateo, Calif. 94403. If you ever had any doubt about the way the Soviets treat their defenders, subscribe to this publication.)

On Hurley's Bar

WASHINGTON — A generation ago, as a producer of radio and television programs on NBC's New York stations, I worked at the RCA Building in Rockefeller Center. At the end of each celebrity-stricken day, I would wind up — and wind down — having a drink at a little bar on the corner named Hurley's, and it was there that I became a Republican.

Hurley's was a place that respected tradition in a fast-changing neighborhood, having dispensed booze on that spot for more than a century. It had even survived Prohibition, by turning its front window into a flower shop while operating a speakeasy in the back, until the big-government "drys" came to understand that Americans did not want their personal habits legislated.

But the greatest source of inspiration at Hurley's was that tavern's rare display of courage and family pride in the face of moneyed power. When the Rockefellers bought up all the houses and establishments on the block to knock down and make way for the RCA Building, the Hurleys refused to give up their lease. As a result, the perfect symmetry of Rockefeller Center was spoiled, and its 70-story central edifice had to be built around a rickety three-story building and bar.

Individualism had triumphed — power was not everything. The Hurleys had thumbed their noses at the Rockefellers and had won — their lease on that old building gave us all a new lease on life.

But leases, like lives, run out. Last week, Rockefeller Center took control of the property, ousted the nettlesthe Hurley successors, and announced that the century-old bar would be gutted and replaced by — get this — "a real old-fashioned 19th century tavern of wood and copper."

So the Rockefellers are tearing down the old to make way for the imitation old. Such are the authentic-reproduction signs of the times — you can't even buy real tinsel anymore.

That's the Rockefellers for you: big projects on the boards, big intellects on the payroll, big power on display — and none of the street-smarts necessary to earn the trust of ordinary people.

These thoughts come to mind as the first rift develops in President Ford's White House: on the subject of aiding New York, Vice President Rockefeller, the appointee's appointee, has doublecrossed his administration.

The President is trying to minimize the vice president's defection, but centrist Republicans elsewhere, who originally supported the Rockefeller appointment, are reviewing the past year's Rockefeller record and wondering if he is somebody they want to stay in national office.

And some of us will remember the closing of Hurley's Bar.

Unnatural Gas Prices

WASHINGTON — The Federal Power Commission doesn't intend to let the truth stand in the way of its push for higher natural gas prices.

President Ford, the gas industry, and the top brass at the FPC have concluded that the producers need prices deregulated as an incentive to find more gas and stave off an anticipated shortage.

But there is only the industry's word to support the predictions of shortage. Indeed, the U.S. Court of Appeals has heard evidence that the gas companies are simply holding back their products until they get higher prices. The court ordered the FPC to determine if natural gas curtailments on the East Coast were deliberate or unavoidable.

FPC officials, therefore, have reluctantly instructed their staffs to find out whether the shortage really exists. A confidential study for the House Energy subcommittee states, however, that the FPC investigation is "doomed to failure."

The probe is "miserably understaffed," the study states, because FPC Chairman John Nassikas "has reassigned the more competent staff to work on deregulation."

Only two full-time people have been assigned to go through 100 crates of documents in the case. They have only one lawyer working with them, but he is also assigned to two other investigations.

The Commission has other natural gas probes under way, but they also suffer from understaffing.

One is supposed to determine whether there is more gas available in wells that the industry has shut down, as some critics have alleged.

The FPC has received 50 volumes of technical material on the case from gas producers. The staff working on the investigation, therefore, asked Chairman Nassikas for an expert consultant to help them decipher the data.

Internal FPC memos show that the request was made in July. But two months and a flurry of memos later, Nassikas finally decided that the funds for a consultant were not available.

Nine months of staff work has gurgled down the drain, and the producers' side of the story has yet to be investigated.

Nassikas, apparently, is more interested in getting the gas industry higher prices. And those higher prices will mean higher utility bills for American consumers.

Bike Nonsense

Lincoln

On Jan. 1, 1976 any bicyclist riding a bicycle not equipped with reflectorized tires or rims with a reflectorized band will violate the law. For Nebraskans to comply with the law they will have to shell out extra bucks to buy glowing tires at about $7 apiece that, when wet or covered with mud and road grime, will not reflect.

For the serious cyclist we will have no choice but to ignore the law because the manufacturers and 3M (the sole holder of the patent on the reflectorized tape) have not devised a means of manufacturing high quality clinchers and sew-up tires with reflectorized side walls. Besides, what better way to sell a product than to make it a law to have it?

In the past four to five years bicycle racing has made a comeback in Nebraska. When our lawmakers passed the reflectorized tire law they unknowingly killed competitive racing here. Next year, with the coming of the 1976 bicentennial, bicycle tourists are making plans to travel the roads of our nation. When Nebraska legislators pass laws to discourage bicycling, they should tourist come to the state?

In the age of scarce gasoline, air pollution and sedentarism they are passing laws to discourage alternate means of transportation — bicycles. Just the opposite is called for.

Bad Treatment

Lincoln

Black people work just like white people. But when we start to get ahead the white man gets upset. He doesn't want to see us drive a nice car, or wear some nice clothes.

This worries the man (police). He tries to figure out how the black man can drive such a nice car. The solution that comes to his mind is that he is pushing dope or dealing with prostitutes.

A black guy can ride a bicycle down the street and the police stop him, make him present his ID and call the station to see if the bike is stolen. When the police see a black man drive a new car or a strange black guy in town, they are watched 24 hours a day.

Why? Why? Are we supposed to stay at the bottom?

And why was Arvid Sherell Lewis killed? A policeman is supposed to injure a person if he is forced to shoot. Is there really a reason for what happened?

Elijah Childers was shot in the head. My God, how could a man do such a terrible thing. This was a man that was mentally unbalanced.

A large number of policemen got to Childers' apartment to question him. They say he tried to attack them. He had no witness. We will never know the truth. Why was he not shot in the arm? Can my questions be answered? Can they?

All Have Rights

Falls City

Concerning the recent Marianne Means column about Birch Bayh and hearings on the anti-abortion amendment: I take issue with your report that Catholic cardinals testified that the life of a woman is not as important as the fetus which might be male.

I seriously doubt that this was quoted accurately. Catholic belief is that no soul is better than another. Where it is a question of mother and child (my gynecologist son-in-law says this is largely academic and he has never had to make such a decision), they are of equal value.

A column such as this directs the pro-abortion emotion against the Catholic church. Catholics because of their beliefs are anti-abortion, but many right-to-lifers are not Catholics.

This sort of thinking will rekindle the bigotry against Catholics. They have suffered enough through history because of their beliefs. In a multi-society they have as much right to their beliefs as you have to lobby for it.

Don't Rely On 'Experts'

Lincoln

In discussion of Lincoln's participation in construction of a new nuclear plant, several City Council Members, including Chairman Max Denney mentioned their concern about the implications of the lawsuit the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) filed recently on an older nuclear plant, the Cooper Nuclear Station. They are right to be concerned. NPPD's Cooper lawsuit raises serious questions about the reliability of nuclear plants cost estimates and technology. And it raises a very basic question: who are the "experts" on nuclear power plants?

Some Lincoln Electric System (LES) Board Members seem to think the Council should have left the Fort Calhoun II decision to LES.

But LES is relying on the expert planners at NPPD, who in turn must rely on the skill and truthfulness of private companies to whom the work is contracted. In the case of the Cooper plant, NPPD has concluded that five companies have performed so badly that "damage to property or harm to person" could result.

"Failure to perform as an expert" is one of the charges made in the lawsuit on Cooper against General Electric, Westinghouse Electric and others. The companies had represented themselves as experts in their contract area and NPPD had let contracts "based on such representations of expertise." Yet in the five major areas defined in the suit, NPPD says, they did their job badly, and in several cases actually misrepresented facts to NPPD and covered up their failures.

For example, the suit says, "NPPD replied, to its detriment, on GE's disclosing material information regarding the design, manufacture, and performance capability of the BWR-4 reactor, and further relied on GE's misrepresentations."

It specifies: "GE intentionally and/or negligently concealed from NPPD the existence of the incore vibration problem, and misrepresented to NPPD that it performed in accordance with its contract."

Further: "Upon GE's misrepresentations, and because of GE's concealment, NPPD was induced to continue its contractual obligations with GE and was unable to seek prompt correction of the incore vibration problem." Otherwise, "NPPD could have acted to remedy the situation" (and so have saved an estimated $25 million plus in repairs, replacements, and expensive purchases of power from other utilities necessary when the Nuclear Regulatory Commission ordered Cooper's output cut to 50% capacity because of the incore vibration problem.)

And similarly, Westinghouse, NPPD charges, "Designed, manufactured, furnished and installed a defective bypass system which would be inherently and unreasonably able to cause damage to property or harm to person if used in such condition."

And so the 37-page lawsuit goes on, through three more major problems (including one that should be an important safety feature, the containment system) and three more expert companies for a total of more than $160 million claimed by NPPD.

If GE, Westinghouse, and the other experts are as incompetent at nuclear power plant work as the Cooper suit asserts, then in the future, the public interest had better be defended by the non-experts — which include questioning citizens and thoughtful City Council members.

Costs are one reflection of a whole range of still unsolved difficulties with nuclear power plants. Cooper's costs tripled the original estimate. Nationwide, costs of nuclear plants are skyrocketing and recently a number of projects have been cancelled.

As D. W. Hill of NPPD said about Lincoln's costs of participation in the Fort Calhoun II Project, "There's no way in the world I'm going to put a price on anything." And there's

Better Budget Way

Whether Gov. James Exon is right or wrong in calling a special session of the Legislature and whether senators do anything or not in that session, it ought to be obvious that this state has a lousy setup from a fiscal management point of view. The Legislature appropriates money at one time, taxes are set on a calendar year basis and spending is on a fiscal year basis.

Additionally, we have all sorts of nonsensical things such as the Board of Equalization setting the tax rate while senators determine spending figures. Also, we have a requirement that the sales and income tax be maintained at relatively equal levels in terms of the revenue they produce.

How anybody can make any sense out of all this is hard to understand, even under the best of conditions. But add to it the fact that a lot of politics is played in the Legislature, in the governor's office and on the Board of Equalization and you have a situation that is next to impossible.

This November, the board will meet to set the 1976 income and sales tax rates. It will set the rates for calendar 1976 while those rates produce funds that will be used to help finance the 1976-77 fiscal year.

Popping Up Is No Joke

In submitting a report detailing much of the Watergate prosecution business, Special Prosecutor Henry W. Ruth Jr. says the demand for the release of more evidence of Richard Nixon's wrongdoing stems from fears the former president will re-emerge as a major public figure.

"That's what everybody is worried about, isn't it, a second coming," Ruth said in an apparent sarcastic vein. "Somehow people think this gentleman, Mr. Nixon, is going to pop up again."

Of course some people think he is going to pop up again — why shouldn't they? He's popped up again all through a notorious, unsavory political career. If there is one thing even Nixon's most earnest critics can agree upon, it is that he is admirably tenacious and resilient. He is an adversary hard to keep down.

We keep hearing with each new chapter — such as the release of this report — that Watergate is finally over.

We're not so sure it should be finally over and we wonder, along with Sen. Lowell Weicker, if America really learned anything from it.

If anything was learned it may be that some people in high places can conduct themselves scandalously, even criminally, and still make their getaway with comparative grace, with only another black mark on their reputation as punishment.

Betting Against Sakharov

In the 1950s Russian physicist Andrei Sakharov was known as the "father" of the Soviet Union's hydrogen bomb. Today, he is known as the winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize.

It's been a long, difficult and courageous road for the man who now ranks alongside Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn as a champion for human rights in the Soviet Union.

Solzhenitsyn was expelled from the USSR early last year, but Sakharov continues to speak out for amnesty for Soviet political prisoners with a courage which soon may earn him the same fate.

As early as 1958, Sakharov's misgivings about the awesome consequences of nuclear warfare led him to circulate "Samizdat" (literally, "self-publishing"), calling for a ban on nuclear testing.

If you read Solzhenitsyn's monumental "Gulag Archipelago," you know that a Soviet citizen does not do such things lightly, for it can easily lead to a 10-year sentence in a concentration camp, followed by years of exile.

Sakharov continued, however, and made a personal appeal to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in 1961. It was ignored. Five years later, he took a further step. He participated publicly in a one-minute vigil for human rights. He was fired from his high post in the Soviet nuclear program.

But the fact he wasn't arrested showed that the Kremlin was concerned that harsher reprisals against such an outspoken public figure might trigger even more protests against repression.

Following their expulsion of Solzhenitsyn last year, the Soviets launched a continuous propaganda barrage to discredit him. It has had the opposite effect.

His own compelling testimony on Soviet repression and his profound moral stand about human freedom simply have been verified by the shrill propaganda.

The betting in Oslo is that Sakharov won't be allowed to pick up his prize, since the very awarding of it by the committee will appear to the thin-skinned Soviet regime to be a criticism of its repressive nature. And it is.

(Note: The courageous writings of Soviet dissenters in "Samizdat" form are collected and published in English several times a year by the Samizdat Bulletin, P.O. Box 6128, San Mateo, Calif. 94403. All that Sakharov stands for contradicts the Soviet system, with its denial of human rights, punishment for dissenters, intimidation and the use of fear.

Despite its love of propaganda as a weapon to advance the Marxist cause, the USSR has a clumsy track record in handling its most famous citizens who dissent. When Boris Pasternak won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1958, the Soviets pressured him into turning it down, an act which simply underscored their heavy-handedness. Solzhenitsyn won it in 1970 but couldn't go to Oslo to receive it for fear of being unable to return home.

In 1968 his book, "Progress, Peace, Coexistence and Intellectual Freedom," was published in the West, but circulated only in "Samizdat" form inside the USSR.

Now, the Nobel Prize Committee has cited him for his "fearless effort in the cause of peace among mankind," for his warning "against the dangers connected with the bogus detente, based on wishful thinking and illusions," and for his fight "not only against the abuse of power and violations of human dignity in all its forms, but . . . for the ideal of a state founded on a principle of justice for all."

Auctioneer Has To Create Desire

By WES ALBERS

Star Staff Writer

To hear Bernard Hart describe it, it was the kind of sale that makes an auctioneer's day. Something akin to selling ice cubes to Eskimos.

In this case, he unloaded not one, but two obstetrician's tables and an overhead lamp to a farmer at the old Lincoln General Hospital's close-out auction in 1970.

The poor fellow probably never knew what hit him.

"I was real curious about what he was going to do with those things, so I went up later and asked him," the veteran of more than 25 years of auctions said.

"He just grinned and said, 'I really don't know.' But he sure bought them!"

That's the psychology of auctioneering. Breaking down a buyer's barriers. Getting people to buy things on the spur of the moment — maybe even things they don't want. Or as Hart puts it: "Making the most impossible item look like it would be useful for something."

"Always Challenge"

"An auction is always a challenge," said Hart, who is leaving his job as secretary of the National Auctioneers Association, 135 Lakewood Dr., so he can do more of what he loves — auctioneering.

Just like other salesmen, the auctioneer has to create a desire, establish a price and close a deal, he said, "but many times in less than a minute — for big items, five minutes."

There's a knack to that.

Say you're auctioning household items for a family that is moving. Put the good items on the front lawn, the plain ones in back, Hart said.

Then, according to Hart, the good auctioneer warms up in the back yard, selling pots and pans until a crowd gathers.

'Create Tempo'

"And you've got to start on something you know you'll have bids on — like garden tools. You try to make the bidding very active. Even if you sell a $5 item for $4, you can make it up later on. You create the tempo for a sale."

That tempo comes from something Hart calls "the magic of the auctioneer's chant" — a mind-boggling, tongue-twisting, almost hypnotic piece of verbal music that crescendoes in dollar increments.

"Heeeey, what'll you gimme? What'm I bid? Do I hear $10. Come on. $10. OK, $10. What about $15? Am I bid $15? All in? All done? What'll you gimme? $15," the auctioneer calls, watching the faces of his audience all the time.

"You can read their expressions — like in poker," Hart said. "You can sense the eagerness on a person's face. They may just stand there for an hour. Then all of a sudden their face lights up and you know they're going to bid."

"Now you just don't neglect that person. Before you say, 'Sold!', you give them one last chance."

And if you get the tempo going right, someone will walk away the proud owner of a No. 9 tent pole stretcher or His and Hers shoelaces.

'Have Own Auction'

"When the auction is over, you can tell by their expressions that they wonder why they bought that thing. They'll just take it home, put it in the garage, have an auction and sell it again. It'll probably bring more money the next time."

So how does a buyer protect his interests?

Get there before the auction starts and look the items over, Hart said. Remember that you're buying used items with no guarantee. Inspect everything for damages so you won't be disappointed when you make a purchase. Do your visiting away from the auction. And above all, Hart said, pay attention.

By the way, some things even the best of auctioneers have trouble selling. Hart's personal Waterloo came at that 1970 hospital auction. It seems no one wanted the hospital's used autopsy table. Any bids?

Colombian Attempt To Restrain Use Of English Ultimately Fails

Bogota, Colombia (UPI) — Benito Mussolini once banned the use of all English words such as restaurant and hotel in Fascist Italy to preserve the purity of the Italian language.

Hipolito Hincapie thought he would try the same thing in Bogota for the sake of Spanish.

But whereas Il Duce spawned countless " trattorias" and "alberghi," Hipolito didn't have much luck.

Colombian businessmen are convinced they have a better chance of luring customers to a "drycleaning" instead of a "lavado en seco" or to a "coffee shop" rather than a "cafeteria."

Bogota may be the capital of a South American, Spanish-speaking country, with impressive colonial churches and buildings, but you'd never know it from a walk through the downtown business district.

But despite the threat of fines ranging from $25 to $100 dollars, and the possibility of closure in case of repeated violations, business resistance and non-compliance was massive.

The plan collapsed early in August when Hipolito after a leftist magazine revealed that he had been in jail on three occasions on bad check charges before he entered government service.

With Hincapie's exit, chances are all attempts to make the business world comply will be abandoned.

As one Colombian newsman said, "It may be a national shame, but unfortunately we seem to think that anything coming from abroad or sounding foreign is better than what we can get at home."

Secretary's Presence Causes Talk

DEAR ABBY: Our mother and father were going to a business meeting last weekend when my mother got the flu and couldn't go. My father's secretary, who had planned to go with them, decided that since she had a reservation, anyway, she would go with my father. She left her husband behind.

They are all good friends, but we all know that she cares about my father. There were lots of people there who know them, and we are sure that my father's being seen with his secretary alone caused a lot of talk.

My brothers and I are very upset that our father would go to this Mom, but none of us is saying anything because it might upset her.

We are 13 and 15. Do you think Dad should have taken his secretary to this affair?

Hone Your Bidding Skills

By B. JAY BECKER

Your right-hand opponent bids Four Hearts, both sides vulnerable. What would you bid with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠ AQJ84 ♥ 6 ♦ K9 ♣ Q9732

2. ♠ AK95 ♥ — ♦ KQJ10 ♣ QJ863

3. ♠ KQ7 ♥ QJ96 ♦ A85 ♣ 984

4. ♠ K6 ♥ — ♦ AK109 ♣ AKQJ972

1. Pass. The chief object of a preemptive bid is to make it difficult for the opponents to enter the bidding safely.

So if you happen to hold this hand against a four heart bid, it is not easy to decide whether to pass or bid four spades. In effect, you are between the devil and the d.b.s. If you are by nature a fearless competitor, you will bid four spades and hope the roof doesn't cave in on you. If you are by nature cautious, you will pass and hope for the best. Either way, you won't feel comfortable.

The point is that a double of four hearts is ambiguous and not clearly for either penalties or takeout. It is what is called an optional double. You may not exact the full measure of punishment by passing (if the next two players also pass), but a much worse result could accrue if you doubled and partner took the double out.

2. Double. Your partner might elect to pass the double, but even though you may feel this is undesirable, there is no reasonable alternative to the double. The dilemma you face merely emphasizes how bothersome a preemptive bid can sometimes be. Of course, it might turn out that the best possible outcome is to let the opponents play the hand at four hearts doubled.

3. Pass. Here you expect to beat four hearts, but you daren't double because all too often your partner will yank the husband gone along. But don't sweat it, kids — it could have been entirely innocent.

DEAR ABBY: My problem all started Friday night when I asked my dad if my friend could stay all night. My father said he could if we went to bed at 10.

I said, "Daddy, I'm 12 years old — almost 13," and then he said something to me, and I said, "What?" instead of "Sir?" and the next thing I knew he said, "Now, it's 9:00 bedtime for you!"

Then I called him a "retarded ape," which was a big mistake because just for that he said I couldn't have any overnight company.

Abby, I am going to lose all my friends and nobody will ever want to stay overnight with me if I have to go to bed at 9:00.

Please help me.

A BABY AT 12

DEAR BABY: If you want to be treated as an adult, start acting like one. And you'd better get over that babyish name-calling bit.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C. L. IN HIGHLAND PARK, ILL.: The quote was: "The person who comes into your company and hogs all the conversation is no less a hog than the person who comes to the table and eats all the food." And I'll accept all the credit — or blame for it.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Meeting Set
At University
On Shooting

The Associated Students of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln voted Wednesday night to call an open meeting on the shooting death of Sherrell Lewis.

Lewis was shot and killed by Deputy Sheriff Rod Looe during a drug raid Sept. 24.

The meeting is scheduled from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Friday at the north plaza of the Nebraska Union. The resolution passed by ASUN, which invites all students, faculty and other interested persons, and requests that classes be called off during the meeting.

County Commissioner Bruce Hamilton, Lincoln Mayor Helen Boosalis, State Sen. Ernie Chambers, Sheriff Merle Karnopp and representatives of the Lincoln Police Department and the Malone community will attend, according to ASUN Sen. Tony Williams.

2 Men Held
In Schuyler
After Hunt

Schuyler (AP) — Two men were in custody in Schuyler Thursday following an intensive manhunt by the State Patrol, Colfax County sheriff's office and the Schuyler police department for one of them on Wednesday.

Colfax County authorities identified the two as George Reeves, 19, of Fremont, and Gregory Thomas Littler, 19, of Crete.

Adams County officials said the pair have been charged with the theft of a motorcycle in a warrant issued in Hastings.

The pair were first spotted Tuesday evening in Schuyler. Two policemen gave chase and captured Littler at that time. The other man, however, fled on foot Wednesday morning, police received a report from a citizen that a man had been seen entering and then leaving a farmhouse near Schuyler.

Police summoned assistance from the other law enforcement agencies and blocked off a corn field while an aerial search of the area was conducted. Reeves later was apprehended by Asst. Police Chief Maurice Salak and State Trooper Roger Wolf in the field.

Adams County authorities said the pair were wanted for the theft of a motorcycle, which was recovered in Schuyler. However, the FBI has entered the case as the cycle, which was reported stolen by a Hastings resident, was earlier reported stolen from Indianapolis, Ind.

Scotts Bluff
Ballots Also In Spanish

Spanish-speaking voters in Scotts Bluff County will be able to cast their vote in 1976 using a ballot written in their native tongue.

Secretary of State Allen J. Beermann said Thursday the U.S. Census Bureau has notified him that Scotts Bluff County will have to offer language minority voters special voting assistance.

Counties whose population includes 5% or more people who speak a language other than English must offer voting assistance.

Such assistance may include interpreters, ballots printed in minority language and voting instructions in that language.

Scotts Bluff County is the second in Nebraska to be so designated. Earlier, Thurston County's Indian population won the same right.

Unlike Spanish, Beermann said, much of the Indian language is oral, lacking a written counterpart. Thus, there could be a problem printing ballots in Indian to convey the idea of, for instance, a natural resource district.

Beermann said interpreters will probably be made available in Thurston County for Indian voters needing help.

Special Session
Cited For Delay
Of Ed Hearings

State Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue said Thursday legislative hearings on school finance and reorganization originally scheduled for Grand Island, Columbus and Omaha have been postponed.

Lewis said the postponement resulted from the special session of the unicameral called by Gov. J. James Exon.

The hearings were scheduled to begin Monday in Grand Island and conclude Wednesday in Omaha. Lewis said he hoped to reschedule the hearings for late November.

Also postponed were two education committee hearings set for Oct. 28 and Oct. 30 in Fairbury and Beatrice. Lewis said those two hearings would also be rescheduled for November.

San Francisco — As the curtain rings down and the house lights go on in England's theaters, the audience stands at attention and the orchestra plays "God Save the Queen."

You'll be amazed because what they are playing is "My Country 'tis Of Thee/Sweet Land of Liberty."

It seems we copied the song from the British. This curious fact is offered in honor of the Bicentennial.

Actually, I'm testing a new typewriter: The Tippa, a German machine.

"This is the Rolls Royce of typewriters," said the man who got it for me.

For many a year, I've been on an Olivetti. An Italian typewriter. (And I carry a Japanese camera. The Axis didn't win the war, but they don't do so bad in peace times.)

A friend of mine put aside his portable and bought a beautiful big desk model electric typewriter.

He said: "I soon got used to it — there's a difference in the pressure you put on the keys. The electric only needs a little tap. There was a key tapped and the carriage went back to start a new line."

He said: "What happened was I went on assignment to the Philippines. I took the old portable but I lost the touch."

When he tapped the key board, the printing key rose only halfway to the paper. Automatically he tapped a key to send the carriage back for a new line.

What came out on paper was

The writer thinks through his fingers. Put him on a different typewriter and it's like speaking a new language.

Walt Coburn, the great Western story writer, could only work on the ancient Underwood he bought second hand when he was getting his first rejection slips.

They don't spoil the help around newspapers. And when I was weaving purple prose I wrote on clunkers you wouldn't believe. I think we even had an old Woodstock.

Over years of hysterical screaming, city editors develop a gravel voice something like Louis Armstrong. They keep the work horses in the front row so they only have to point and croak: "You."

This keeps the front hogs busy while the rear ranks fiddle in the barley fields.

One day — the typewriter must have logged a million miles — the whole carriage fell off. The typewritten story was wrapped around it.

I just said: "Boy" (now boys and girls are "copy persons") "Boy" and handed him the carriage and story for the city editor.

You think they bought a new typewriter? They sent the machine out and had it repaired! They gave it back to me. Clink, clank.

The new Tippa and I are getting together gradually. It weighs the same as the Olivetti — nine pounds. Typewriters are never checked. Never handed to a bellboy. We carry them ourselves.

Once I let an airline stewardess — a dreamy chick — carry it. She put it on the wrong plane. That's how Samson got his haircut.

How Much Noise Bad For Farmer?

Does noise generated by tractors and other farm implements injure the health of farm workers to the extent that noise standards should be established? The answer is not a clear-cut yes or no, because of a number of variables involved. But a final decision will be forthcoming by the U.S. Department of Labor, and a recommendation from an advisory committee may be made as early as December.

Findings gathered from a three-day visit to Nebraska are likely to be significant in shaping the recommendation by the 15-member agricultural advisory committee to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). The committee, headed by Dr. Gary Erisman of the University of Florida, has been wrestling for nine months with the challenge of establishing whether noise levels encountered in normal farm operations warrant protective standards affecting both manufacturers and farm workers.

Rollin D. Schneider, University of Nebraska Extension safety specialist and a past chairman of the committee, said the advisory group to the assistant secretary of labor for occupational safety and health came to the state because of its leadership in testing of tractors and other farm equipment for noise. During their stay, the committee visited the Merle and Ralph Olson farms near Ceresco to see general farm equipment in operation and learn of actual noise levels to which an operator is exposed.

While it is known that noise levels above 90 decibels can be detrimental to hearing, and tractors and other farm equipment have produced noise in excess of 100 decibels, a valid cause-and-effect conclusion cannot be drawn that simply, Erisman said.

Many cases have been documented in which farmers' hearing has declined over a period of time, but it would be speculative to pin the blame on a single cause, such as a tractor, the safety specialist stated. Other activities where high noises are present might be implicated, he suggested.

The length of time a farmer might be exposed to a high noise level makes a difference in the potential health hazard, he explained. It is the intermittent nature of noise exposure in farm operations which makes the problem of establishing possible noise standards different in agriculture than in industry, where noise such as on an assembly line is constant.

Erisman said the on-site experience, such as the committee's visit to the Olson farms south of Ceresco, "is crucial" to decision-making" by the committee in recommending standards.

The committee recommended rollover protection standards for tractors which went into effect April 25, requiring that employees be made aware of nine safety rules of operation. In addition, all tractors manufactured on or after October 1976 and used by employees must have built-in rollover protection features. The standard is not retroactive to older tractors.

Currently, Erisman said, the committee is studying the need for standards in noise, job-related transportation and electrical systems in agriculture.

Various committee members voiced comments during their visit to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln tractor testing laboratory and the Olson farms.

Jay Arnogus, OSHA program specialist, Washington, D.C., said the noise problem is the most pressing issue of the five or six standards being considered for recommendation to the secretary of labor. He noted the absence of noise standards for agriculture, while they have existed in industry for a long time.

John Harris of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute (FIEI), Racine, Wis., expressed interest in the amount of noise causing hearing impairment over a working lifetime. He suggested that because experts do not know what a safe noise level is, "we tend to overprotect to be on the safe side."

Mrs. Alice Murray, who also is on the national Farm Bureau Women's Committee and the National Safety Council Board, insists that employees on her Iowa farm wear earmuffs during the entire work day when operating machinery.

Frank Walters of Deere & Co., Waterloo, Iowa, chairman of the FIEI noise committee, said "a properly engineered cab will not intensify noise." However, he emphasized that the cab must be tailored to the vehicle. Twenty years of work have gone into noise reduction in vehicles, he said.

In his dissent, Rasmussen said the commission decision reflects labor cost increases which were considered in a prior increase. Instead of an 11.6% increase in labor costs, Rasmussen said the commission should have used an 8.7% rise in wages.

Similarly, the commission considered non-labor costs which were also weighed in a previous rate case, Rasmussen said.

"This amounts to double compensation, and an adjustment in this figure is necessary," he said.

"In conclusion, the full grant authorized by my fellow commissioners was simply not shown to be justified by the applicants. We have never before allowed carriers under our jurisdiction to benefit twice from increased expense data, and I see no reasonable explanation to start such a practice now."

How Much Noise Bad For Farmer?

Does noise generated by tractors and other farm implements injure the health of farm workers to the extent that noise standards should be established? The answer is not a clear-cut yes or no, because of a number of variables involved. But a final decision will be forthcoming by the U.S. Department of Labor, and a recommendation from an advisory committee may be made as early as December.

Findings gathered from a three-day visit to Nebraska are likely to be significant in shaping the recommendation by the 15-member agricultural advisory committee to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). The committee, headed by Dr. Gary Erisman of the University of Florida, has been wrestling for nine months with the challenge of establishing whether noise levels encountered in normal farm operations warrant protective standards affecting both manufacturers and farm workers.

Rollin D. Schnieder, University of Nebraska Extension safety specialist and a past chairman of the committee, said the advisory group to the assistant secretary of labor for occupational safety and health came to the state because of its leadership in testing of tractors and other farm equipment for noise.

During their stay, the committee visited the Merle and Ralph Olson farms near Ceresco to see general farm equipment in operation and learn of actual noise levels to which an operator is exposed.

While it is known that noise levels above 90 decibels can be detrimental to hearing, and tractors and other farm equipment have produced noise in excess of 100 decibels, a valid cause-and-effect conclusion cannot be drawn that simply, Erisman said.

Many cases have been documented in which farmers' hearing has declined over a period of time, but it would be speculative to pin the blame on a single cause, such as a tractor, the safety specialist stated. Other activities where high noises are present might be implicated, he suggested.

The length of time a farmer might be exposed to a high noise level makes a difference in the potential health hazard, he explained. It is the intermittent nature of noise exposure in farm operations which makes the problem of establishing possible noise standards different in agriculture than in industry, where noise such as an assembly line is constant.

Erisman said the on-site experience, such as the committee's visit to the Olson farms south of Ceresco, is crucial to decision-making by the committee in recommending standards.

The committee recommended rollover protection standards for tractors which went into effect April 25, requiring that employees be made aware of nine safety rules of operation. In addition, all tractors manufactured on or after October 1976 and used by employees must have built-in rollover protection features. The standard is not retroactive to older tractors.

Currently, Erisman said, the committee is studying the need for standards in noise, job-related transportation and electrical systems in agriculture.

Various committee members voiced comments during their visit to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln tractor testing laboratory and the Olson farms.

TEST RIDE... OSHA's Harris and Reuben Contreras, Schneider.

Jay Arnolus, OSHA program specialist, Washington, D.C., said the noise problem is the most pressing issue of the five or six standards being considered for recommendation to the secretary of labor. He noted the absence of noise standards for agriculture, while they have existed in industry for a long time.

Frank Walters of Deere & Co., Waterloo, Iowa, chairman of the FIEI noise committee, said "a properly engineered cab will not intensify noise." However, he emphasized that the cab must be tailored to the vehicle. Twenty years of work have gone into noise reduction in vehicles, he said.

John Harris of the Farm and Industrial Equipment Institute (FIEI), Racine, Wis., expressed interest in the amount of noise causing hearing impairment over a working lifetime. He suggested that because experts do not know what a safe noise level is, "we tend to overprotect to be on the safe side."

Mrs. Alice Murray, who also is on the national Farm Bureau Women's Committee and the National Safety Council Board, insists that employees on her Iowa farm wear earmuffs during the entire work day when operating machinery.

Wahoo — Once the gavel is raised it takes quick reaction and split-second decisions to bid successfully at an auction.

But what the Unicameral's legislative process lacks in alacrity, members of the Government, Military and Veterans Affairs Committee tempered with the realization that the auctioneers gavel is poised.

"Physically the setting couldn't be any nicer. It would be ideal, and, I think, the buildings are in good shape," Committee Chairman Dennis Rasmussen said.

More than 100 people Thursday voiced that support in a hastily called public hearing in Wahoo.

They asked that the Legislature enter the bidding for the abandoned JFK campus, which they envision as a state veterans home.

Besides facing competition from a group of Lutheran educators, who have expressed interest in the campus as a high school academy, senators also face an Oct. 25 deadline.

The Wisconsin Synod of the Lutheran Church bid $250,000 unsuccessfully for the main campus two weeks ago and are likely to resubmit a bid this Saturday during the second auction scheduled by the trustee of the federal bankruptcy court.

If no one bids successfully for the campus that has been appraised at $784,000 during that auction, the campus is scheduled likely unless other senators feel they are prepared to discuss it.

"Our principal hope is the trustee not getting an acceptable bid, and deciding to wait until the Unicameral can act in January," panel member Lorain Schmit said.

The Bellwood senator said it would be difficult psychologically to vote an appropriation after discussing dwindling state finances.

Ken Diamond, assistant director of the Comprehensive Health Planning Office, raised the lone voice in opposition to the proposal.

He cited Department of Public Institution data used to support the need for a veterans home in eastern Nebraska showing that $2.4 million was allotted this fiscal year for the three veterans homes in Grand Island, Scottsbluff and Norfolk.

That data projected the cost would climb to $4.22 million by 1981, and Diamond estimated the cost in state tax money then would be $6 million if the JFK facility was approved.

Increasing Costs Data Claimed Used Twice

Eric Rasmussen, chairman of the Nebraska Public Service Commission, believes a recent rate increase given general commodity truckers allowed truckers to benefit twice from the same increased cost data.

Rasmussen has filed a written dissent to commission action taken earlier this week giving truckers a 6½% increase on loads weighing less than 5,000 pounds and a 4½% increase on loads 5,000 pounds and heavier.

The commission staff recommended a flat 3% increase based on its analysis of fuel and labor costs. The four-member commission majority disagreed, saying the national wholesale price index should also be used to compute a fair return for truckers.

"This amounts to double compensation, and an adjustment in this figure is necessary," he said.

"In conclusion, the full grant authorized by my fellow commissioners was simply not shown to be justified by the applicants. We have never before allowed carriers under our jurisdiction to benefit twice from increased expense data, and I see no reasonable explanation to start such a practice now."

Similarly, the commission considered non-labor costs which were also weighed in a previous rate case, Rasmussen said.

"This amounts to double compensation, and an adjustment in this figure is necessary," he said.

In his dissent, Rasmussen said the commission decision reflects labor cost increases which were considered in a prior increase. Instead of an 11.6% increase in labor costs, Rasmussen said the commission should have used an 8.7% rise in wages.

Series Of Rate Increases Said Needed For OPPD

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Public Power District directors were told Thursday that a series of electric rate increases will be needed each January for the next five years, with the first one expected in January 1976.

Kenneth Ford, division manager of corporate planning and analysis, said the increases will be needed to cover OPPD's capital expenditure program through 1987.

Specifically, Ford said, an $8.8 million dollar increase will be needed next January; a $7.7 million increase in 1977; an $8.8 million increase in 1978; and a $10.2

million increase in 1979; and an $11.5 million increase in 1980.

Most of the additional money is needed to finance construction of a new coal-fired plant in Nebraska City and a second nuclear unit at Fort Calhoun, Ford said.

Speaking for OPPD's management, Ford said the increase in 1980 will be needed if the district becomes part owner of the second nuclear unit planned by the Nebraska Public Power District at Brownville.

The NPPD unit is in the early planning stage and hasn't been approved by the boards of either the board also awarded an $898,700 contract to Exxon Nuclear Co., Inc., for the design, manufacture and delivery of spent fuel storage racks to hold fuel after it is removed from the Fort Calhoun reactor. The racks will permit storage of used fuel through 1983.

The board awarded Goulds Pumps, Inc., of Kansas City a $270,247 contract for 19 turbine-type vertical pumps for the Nebraska City Power Station. The Clow Corp.'s Waste Treatment Division won a $45,939 contract for 18 sump pumps and electric motor drives for the Nebraska City station.

The youth was held for about 30 minutes, then released. Mayor Edward Zorinsky made the decision not to press charges.

"The officer said the kid thought it was already dry," the mayor said.

Officials said they believe the footprint of Astronaut Thomas Stafford can be touched up.

The youth walked up to the prints in the officer's presence and then put his foot down in the still-wet concrete, police said.

He stepped in an astronaut's footprint.

The footprints of the Apollo-Soyuz spacemen were made in concrete earlier in the day. A policeman guarded the footprints after the crowd left.

The youth walked up to the prints in the officer's presence and then put his foot down in the still-wet concrete, police said.

They apparently were held at or near the Robb home about seven miles south and 10 miles east of Nevada between the small towns of Moundville and Montevallo, Mo.

Nevada is near the Kansas line about 100 miles south of Kansas City in southwest Missouri.

The pickup bulletin indicated the men escaped in a brown 1969 Chevrolet sedan.

There was a report such a car had been spotted about 10 miles north of Joplin in the southwest corner of Missouri and was headed for the Kansas line.

The fugitives were described as young white males.

The sheriff's office said a girl friend of Robb's daughters stopped at the Robb house shortly after noon and her arrival in a truck broke up the two days of captivity for the Robbs.

Reports indicated the two men put Robb and the three girls in the truck and fled in Robb's car.

One of the men was quoted as saying they had killed his wife.

The two men were reported to be armed with rifles and pistols.

'Kidmade' Bombs Concern Police

Fremont — Fremont police say they have confiscated crude, homemade bomb devices from several local students, some only 12 and 13 years old. Police officials have recommended that parents of children who work or play with any type of chemistry be "extra careful" their youngsters aren't putting explosives together.

Norfolk Water Ration Plan Working

Norfolk — The city's voluntary water rationing program has been working well, said Doug Nuttelmann, city water commissioner. Before the water rationing program began last week, the water level was down to 15 feet, a dangerous level, he said. Full level is 27 feet. The voluntary program will probably have to be continued through October, he said, especially if the weather continues hot and dry.

Students Ask To Save Buildings

Crete — Doane College officials said the institution's trustees are looking into the question of preserving three old campus buildings. Among the three being looked at is the 70-year-old Conservatory of Music building. Earlier, 500 students signed petitions asking that trustees restore the building.

Research Building To Be Dedicated

Omaha — The new $2.8 million research building at the Omaha Veterans Hospital will be dedicated Saturday. The main speaker will be Odell W. Vaughn, deputy administrator of Veterans Affairs.

Series Of Rate Increases Said Needed For OPPD

Omaha (AP) — Omaha Public Power District directors were told Thursday that a series of electric rate increases will be needed each January for the next five years, with the first one expected in January 1976.

Kenneth Ford, division manager of corporate planning and analysis, said the increases will be needed to cover OPPD's capital expenditure program through 1987.

Specifically, Ford said, an $8.8 million dollar increase will be needed next January; a $7.7 million increase in 1977; an $8.8 million increase in 1978; a $10.2

million increase in 1979; and an $11.5 million increase in 1980.

Most of the additional money is needed to finance construction of a new coal-fired plant in Nebraska City and a second nuclear unit at Fort Calhoun, Ford said.

Speaking for OPPD's management, Ford said the increase in 1980 will be needed if the district becomes part owner of the second nuclear unit planned by the Nebraska Public Power District at Brownville.

The NPPD unit is in the early planning stage and hasn't been approved by the boards of either

Omaha Youth Puts Foot In Astronaut's Footprint

Omaha (AP) — A 17-year-old was arrested Wednesday for making a bad impression.

He stepped in an astronaut's footprint.

The footprints of the Apollo-Soyuz spacemen were made in concrete earlier in the day. A policeman guarded the footprints after the crowd left.

The youth walked up to the prints in the officer's presence and then put his foot down in the still-wet concrete, police said.

Four Held Captive In Missouri

NEVADA, Mo. (AP) — The sheriff's office said Thursday afternoon it and the highway patrol were searching for two men who held a man and three girls as hostages for two days and told them they had robbed a bank in Nebraska.

However, the FBI in Omaha and the Nebraska State Patrol office in Lincoln said they knew of no bank robberies in Nebraska in the first four days of this week.

Task Force Boosts State As Energy Research Site

By The Associated Press
Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan announced Thursday that a task force has been organized to encourage the federal government to locate a multimillion dollar solar and wind energy research facility in Nebraska.

Whelan said the task force would be headed by Donald Edwards, associate dean of the college of engineering at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Whelan said the research institute would have a budget of $15 million initially and grow to $50 million by 1980.

Car Accidents Raise Fatality Count By Two

Two more Nebraskans have died in traffic accidents, the State Patrol reported Thursday.

Robert F. Phillips, 85, of Stockville was killed Wednesday in the collision of his car and a gravel truck at the junction of Main St. and Neb. 22 in Stockville.

The sheriff's office at Curtis said the truck was driven by Larry Erickson, 28, of North Platte.

Robert L. Grimm, 44, of Harrison died in the crash of his pickup truck about 28 miles north of Crawford on Neb. 71 Wednesday night, the State Patrol said.

Troopers said the pickup failed to negotiate a curve, went into a ditch and rolled.

Man Arrested For S. Omaha Bank Robbery

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha man was arrested and charged with armed robbery Thursday following a pickup at the Omaha National Bank branch office in south central Omaha Thursday morning.

Bellevue police arrested Dennis E. Stolp, 27, of Omaha, at about 2 p.m., the FBI said.

He was held in an Omaha jail pending an appearance in municipal court Friday.

An estimated $25,000 was taken in the robbery.

A teller at the bank said a man threatened her with a gun at about 8:15 a.m. She said he told bank employees to lie on the floor as he made his getaway. There were no injuries.

One Man Killed In Tractor Crash

Nebraska City (AP) — A rural Nebraska City man was killed Thursday in a tractor accident at his residence, 2 miles southwest of town.

Authorities withheld the name of the victim pending notification of relatives.

Officials said the victim was moving dirt when his tractor tipped over, pinning him beneath it. He died after being taken to a local hospital.

Across Nebraska

'Kidmade' Bombs Concern Police

Fremont — Fremont police say they have confiscated crude, homemade bomb devices from several local students, some only 12 and 13 years old. Police officials have recommended that parents of children who work or play with any type of chemistry be "extra careful" their youngsters aren't putting explosives together.

Norfolk Water Ration Plan Working

Norfolk — The city's voluntary water rationing program has been working well, said Doug Nuttelmann, city water commissioner. Before the water rationing program began last week, the water level was down to 15 feet, a dangerous level, he said. Full level is 27 feet. The voluntary program will probably have to be continued through October, he said, especially if the weather continues hot and dry.

Students Ask To Save Buildings

Crete — Doane College officials said the institution's trustees are looking into the question of preserving three old campus buildings. Among the three being looked at is the 70-year-old Conservatory of Music building. Earlier, 500 students signed petitions asking that trustees restore the building.

Research Building To Be Dedicated

Omaha — The new $2.8 million research building at the Omaha Veterans Hospital will be dedicated Saturday. The main speaker will be Odell W. Vaughn, deputy administrator of Veterans Affairs.

index moved up 14 to 8937, and

composite of more than 1,500

common stocks rose 99 to 4733.

Gainers held an 850-to-533

edge on losers among the 1,813 issues changing hands on the Big

Board.

NYSE volume stepped up to 18,911 million shares from 14,44 million on Wednesday.

Brokers said the catalyst for the early buying was the Federal Reserve's announcement late Wednesday that it was lowering the amount of reserves member banks must hold against time deposits from 3 to 1 per cent.

The cut had the effect of injecting some additional funds into the banking system, thus making more money available to fuel a rebound from the recession.

While the total involved was modest, analysts said, the move also represented further evidence of a more relaxed credit policy by the Fed—and thus heightened hopes for a downtrend in interest rates.

Rates in both the bond and short term money markets fell in reaction to the news.

No bidder will be permitted to wind up his bid for a period of thirty days after date of bid opening.

Mid-State Project Flood Of Confusion

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Farm Editor

Voters in the area to be served by the Mid-State Irrigation Reclamation District are being flooded with claims and counter-claims about the merit of the proposed irrigation project.

News releases issued by pro- and anti-project groups cite various water reports, wildlife reports and geological survey data to support their claims.

Few if any voters ever see the actual data cited by speakers on either side of the issue.

The Mid-State Project is intended to irrigate at least 140,000 acres of Merrick, Hall and Buffalo Counties. It is described as a groundwater control, flood control and recreation project as well as an irrigation project.

Local citizens are divided, communities in the area sometimes have taken a position for or against the project only after bitter discussions in city council meetings and often a split vote.

Federal agencies have also taken opposite sides in either supporting or opposing the project. The Bureau of Reclamation supports the project while the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service opposes it.

A study by the U.S. Geological Survey, intended to resolve conflicts between the agencies, served only to provide both sides with additional ammunition to fire at the voters.

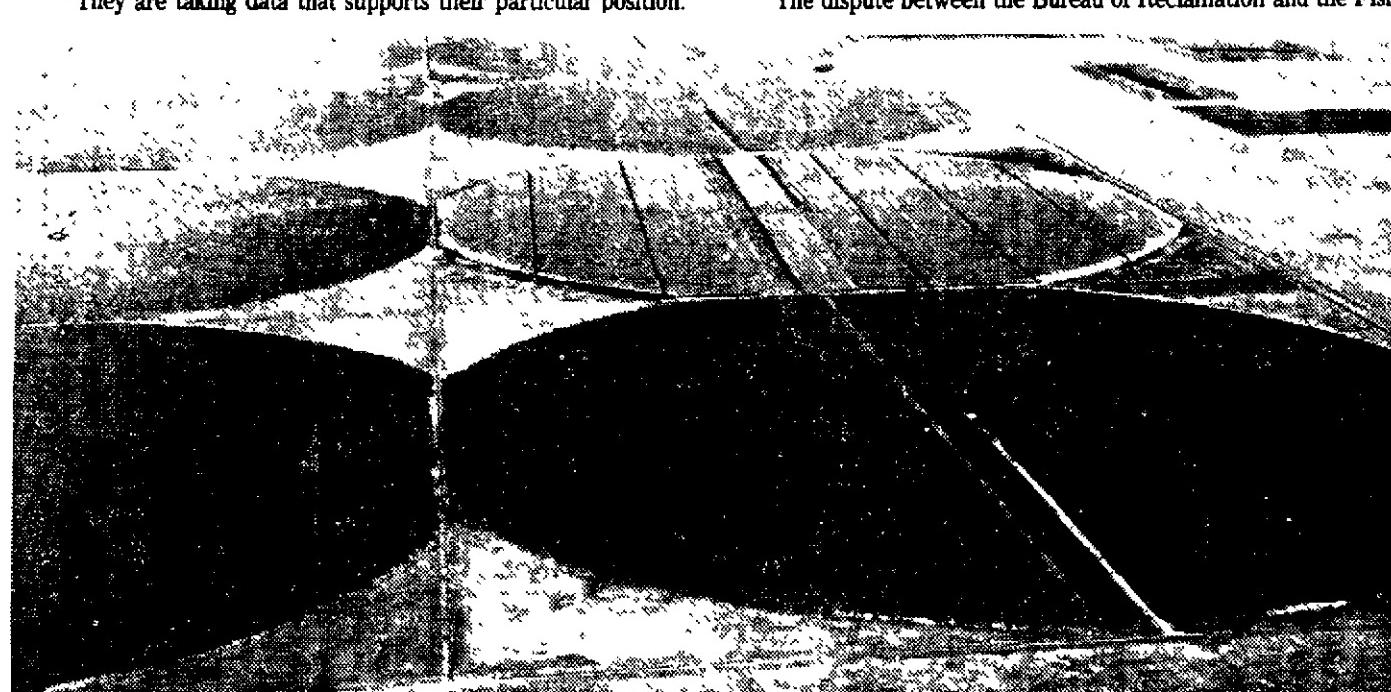

The Central Platte Natural Resource District board of directors is waiting to take a stand until after the special election Nov. 4 when voters from Buffalo, Hall and Merrick Counties will decide if they want to continue the project.

Voters have twice before approved the project, in 1948 by a margin of 3-1 and again in 1957 by a margin of 10-1.

If local voters should reject the project this time, it will be considered dead, despite the large outlay of federal money and more than $3 million in local funds invested in planning to date.

Officials of various water-related agencies in state and university areas are trying hard to stay out of the battles.

"They are taking data that supports their particular position.

and Wildlife Service, both agencies of the Department of the Interior, resulted in still another report being prepared to evaluate their report.

Eric Lappala, a hydrologist with the U.S. Geological Survey, denied that his report was designed to act as a referee between the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

"We did examine the methods used by the bureau to make its study and found it basically correct," he said. In Merrick County the aquifer (underground water supply) is thin and they do have a water supply problem but there is recharge there each year. This was the basic difference we found. It is due to the type of aquifer in the area," he said.

Lappala said both sides were picking things out of his report to support their particular point of view. The report has been released to the public but to get a copy a voter must write to the Department of Interior in Washington because it is an administrative report.

"We don't even have an extra copy here," Lappala said.

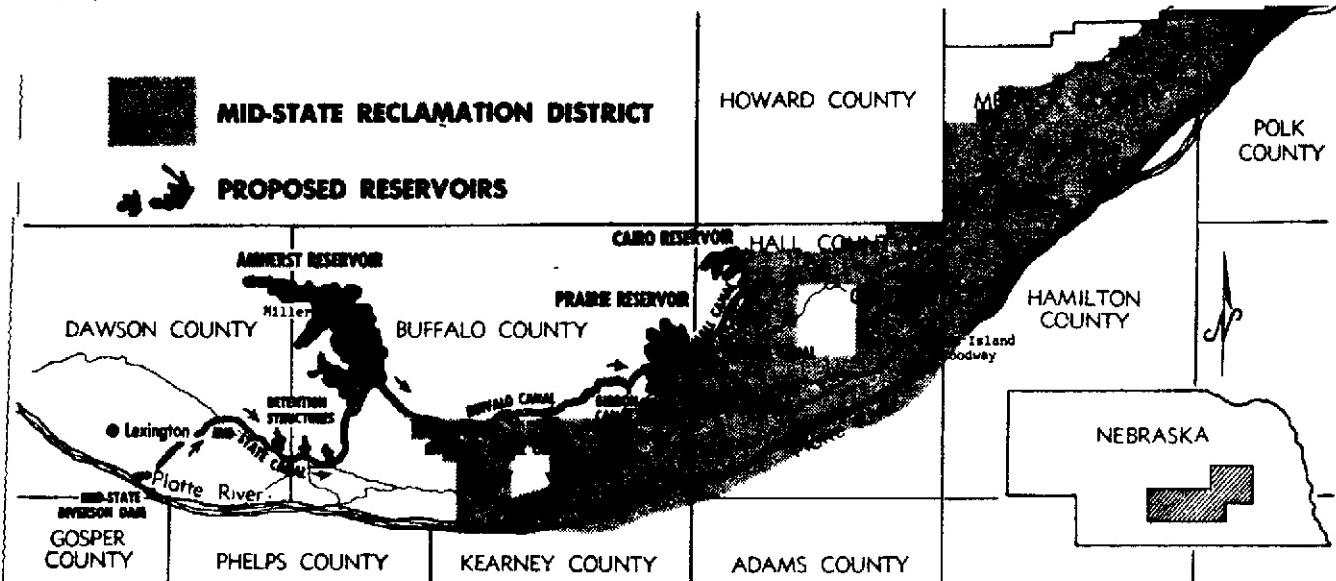

Asked if the report had a recommendation about the survival of the project, Lappala said, "The Platte Level B Study did recommend that the study (of the project) be completed but it appears that some land outside of the project boundaries should be in the project and perhaps some in the project doesn't need to be there."

Lappala said the voters would determine if the project is to survive.

"If they vote it down, it is dead. The decision is in their hands. Unfortunately they have a lot of conflicting statements to base their decision on. It involves a lot more than wildlife people versus farmers. It involves the best possible use of the water available in the area," he said.

Voters in the area to be served by the Mid-State Irrigation Reclamation District are being flooded with claims and counter-claims about the merit of the proposed irrigation project.

News releases issued by pro- and anti-project groups cite various water reports, wildlife reports and geological survey data to support their claims.

Few if any voters ever see the actual data cited by speakers on either side of the issue.

The Mid-State Project is intended to irrigate at least 140,000 acres of Merrick, Hall and Buffalo Counties. It is described as a groundwater control, flood control and recreation project as well as an irrigation project.

Local citizens are divided, communities in the area sometimes have taken a position for or against the project only after bitter discussions in city council meetings and often a split vote.

Federal agencies have also taken opposite sides in either supporting or opposing the project. The Bureau of Reclamation supports the project while the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service opposes it.

A study by the U.S. Geological Survey, intended to resolve conflicts between the agencies, served only to provide both sides with additional ammunition to fire at the voters.

The Central Platte Natural Resource District board of directors is waiting to take a stand until after the special election Nov. 4 when voters from Buffalo, Hall and Merrick Counties will decide if they want to continue the project.

Voters have twice before approved the project, in 1948 by a margin of 3-1 and again in 1957 by a margin of 10-1.

If local voters should reject the project this time, it will be considered dead, despite the large outlay of federal money and more than $3 million in local funds invested in planning to date.

Officials of various water-related agencies in state and university areas are trying hard to stay out of the battles.

"They are taking data that supports their particular position.

It's not that anyone is telling lies, they are just pretty selective about which portions of the truth they are telling," said one official of a water agency who declined to be quoted by name.

One reason that both sides of story are true is that final plans for the project haven't yet been drawn. The experts evaluating the effect of the district can refer to only past policies of bureau projects and experiences of wildlife experts with changes in the ecology around other projects built years ago.

A news release issued by Mark Bolin, a farmer from Gibbon opposed to the project, charges the proponents with "mythical" projections to support the project.

Bolin cites eight graphs of test wells in Dawson, Buffalo, Hall and Merrick Counties with all but one showing stabilized groundwater levels.

Bolin charged that "a 1972 brochure claiming tremendous declines of groundwater was discovered to be based on a single well."

Robert Lowery, president of the Mid-State board of directors, "that is not true. The brochure was based on a survey of 600 wells."

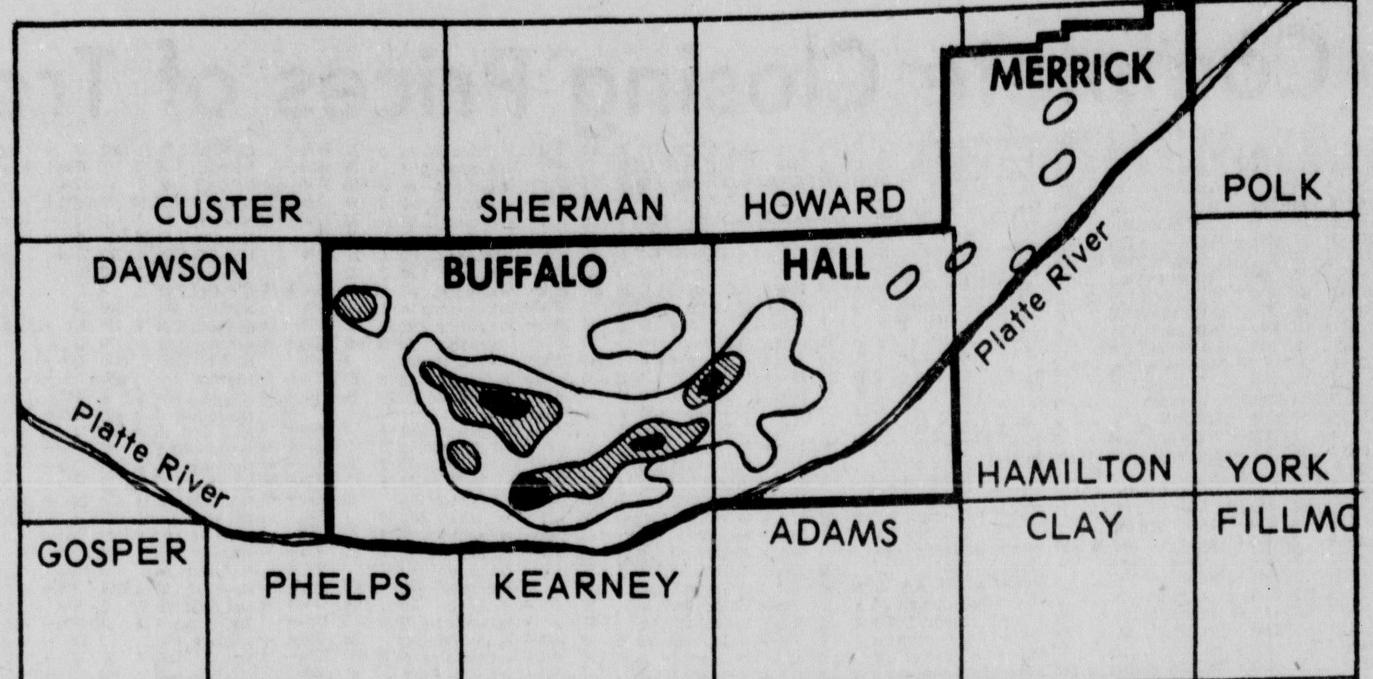

Bolin cites Nebraska Water Survey Paper Number 40 as supporting his claim that groundwater supplies are stabilizing. Lowry charges that Bolin's statement is based on four wells in the report that are located near the river.

A copy of the report obtained from the Conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska shows that both men are correct in their statements.

The report is based on 3,400 water level measurements made in 1,344 wells by personnel of the U.S. Geological Survey, the NU Conservation and Survey Division and the State Department of Water Resources.

The report contains a map, not mentioned by either group in its news release, that suggests some areas of the project do have some degree of groundwater loss as a result of pump irrigation. The map also shows other areas of the project which apparently have not suffered a decline in groundwater levels to date.

Health Planning Council Given Revised Health Systems Plan

The Southeast Nebraska Health Planning Council board of directors took a brief look Thursday night at the second version of the Health Systems Plan for their 17 county area.

That plan, presented first at the March meeting, had undergone the requested revisions and was presented for viewing prior to expected acceptance at a November meeting.

In presenting the plan, Don Nielsen, president of the Community Health Care Association, said the work of the council is "coming to a close." He briefly remarked on "passing down" the plan and the board's duties to a new health systems agency.

Nielsen reviewed a list of primary goals of the plan. He said top priority has gone to provide technical assistance and consultation to Southeast Nebraska hospitals for shared services, cooperative programming and comprehensive community health planning.

Deadline for that goal is June 1976, Nielsen said, adding the project will contain cost by helping hospitals identify areas of cooperation and shared services.

"This is our blueprint, but it's only so much paperwork if we don't mean what we say," Nielsen said, urging the board give serious consideration to the overall plan before the coming meeting.

Nielsen also presented a letter to Art Blackman, president of the council, and asked the board to "take stock of some of their past decisions and be prepared to justify them."

No action was taken on the letter following a brief discussion.

'Show Boat' Production A Spectacle

By DEB GRAY
Star Staff Writer

They don't make shows like "Show Boat" anymore.

It's a world of spectacle, populated by all sorts of stock characters — pickaninnies, worldly gamblers, vaudeville actors. And true love wins out in the end.

Jérôme Kern's musical love story spans 30 years of riverboat life. The University of Nebraska School of Music in its first production this semester, captures the spirit of this show with sumptuous costumes, ambitious — though predictable — sets and a large cast.

The first act is stronger than the second. There are some great comedy scenes here — especially when Magnolia and Gaylord meet as lead characters in one of the show boat's melodramas.

The love duet "You are Love" near the end of the act is lovely and capable of keeping the audience humming through intermission.

Patty Harney and Richard Drews made their debut in leading roles with this production. Both have beautiful voices and show great promise for future musicals.

One comic standout was J. D. Sudib in his Charlie Chaplin portrayal of Frank, the henpecked half of a husband-and-wife dance team. Carol Penterman gave a strong performance as Julie, his wife.

But the real audience favorites were professional actors Carol Rogers and Lynwood Jones. Miss Rogers is a talented comic actress and powerful singer. I wished her part had allowed her to sing more.

Jones won over the crowd with his rendition of "Old Man River." The song is one of those sure-fire lump-in-your-throat numbers. It brings out the chills no matter how many times you hear it.

"Show Boat" is great nostalgia. It's almost a museum piece — a reminder of what musicals used to be.

The show continues at Kimball Recital Hall with Friday and Saturday performances at 8 p.m. and a 3 p.m. matinee Sunday.

The LTS Board also re-elected Joan Bowers to be chairwoman of the advisory panel. Member Turner Allen reported that he has submitted his resignation to the mayor.

The LTS's monthly report shows that the bus system had a $40,491 loss during the month of September, compared to a $21,704 loss during September, 1974.

Total operating revenues during September were $74,547, while operating expenses totaled $15,088.

The 87% increase in the LTS deficit is attributed to increasing fuel and other operating costs and higher wages for employees.

Management Of LTS Pondered

Bus planners are considering hiring a management firm to run the Lincoln Transportation System (LTS).

Members of the LTS Advisory Board discussed the possibility Thursday of contracting with a national consulting and management firm instead of hiring a permanent LTS manager.

Manager Dick Frank resigned last month to take another job in Honolulu.

Petitions Calling For Grand Jury Being Circulated

Petitions are being circulated calling for a grand jury investigation into the police shootings of Shadrill Lewis and Elijah Childers.

The petition claims that in each case law enforcement officers violated state law by conspiring to kill the men without due process of law.

The petition also calls for the grand jury to consider the general conduct of activities of local law enforcement agencies.

Lewis was shot by a deputy sheriff during the initial stages of a drug search on Sept. 24. His death the next day triggered controversy that continues more than three weeks later.

Childers was killed on Feb. 1 of this year when officers went to his apartment to investigate a fight earlier in a tavern.

Officers said he came from the doorway with a knife in his hand and that they shot to protect themselves.

Those circulating the petitions under the leadership of the Justice for Lewis Committee have 90 days according to state law to gather 4,828 signatures, which is 10% of the total votes cast in the governor's race in the last election.

After the signatures are gathered the election commission has 30 days to validate them.

The signatures. The Lancaster District Judge can then study the petitions for 15 days to assure himself of their validity before calling a grand jury.

Protectors'
Radio Use
'Mundane'

Washington (UPI) — Secret Service radio communications can be overheard just like those police departments, but the agency is careful not to reveal secrets on the air, a spokesman said Thursday.

The presidential protectors have "long been aware of the fact that our frequencies can be monitored," said spokesman John W. Warner.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "police departments across the nation recognize that their frequencies can be monitored. Because we know this, the Secret Service is careful as to what it transmits over its frequencies and does not transmit a communication that should be protected in that fashion."

Warner was asked about the problem after a Hartford, Conn., private detective said he had overheard Secret Service communications during President Ford's trip to Hartford where Ford's armor-protected limousine was involved in a collision with another car.

Richard Sulman said he was "troubled and surprised" to find the agency's level of communications sophistication "mundane."

"I was almost stunned by the generally low level of sophistication of their use of communications," Sulman said.

Sulman, a security consultant who specializes in advanced surveillance equipment, said he casually came upon the Secret Service agents' walkie-talkie and mobile unit communications and easily interpreted their messages.

"My hope is that someone at a high level will recognize the breach here and step in and repair it," he said. "I realize that this is a potentially serious flaw in the President's overall protection."

Experts noted, however, that the air waves are open to all—which is why the Federal Communication Commission was created to assure just and equal access. It is possible to make certain bands more secure than others, but not to protect them completely from sophisticated monitoring equipment.

"The skills they used were so mundane, so simple that the public should be deeply concerned, as I was," Sulman said.

Even after the presidential limousine collided with another car at a downtown intersection, the use of code names and code terms was "Surprisingly simple and easily interpreted," Sulman said.

He said the Secret Service appeared to be using "ordinary, off-the-shelf, walkie-talkie and vehicular radios, with no particular level of sophistication of how they used their channels."

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tony Perez plays baseball with a special philosophy.

"I've been in this game for 11 years and I go day by day," said Perez. "I forget about what happened yesterday. That's what my wife tells me to do, and that's what I do."

Mrs. Perez must forgive her husband if he breaks his pledge and reminiscences just a little bit about the two home runs he rocketed Thursday night, leading the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-2 victory over Boston in the pivotal fifth game of the 1975 World Series.

Hitless in 15 Series' at bats, Perez shattered the slump in the fourth inning with a solo home run and added a three-run shot in the sixth inning.

That was plenty of offense for fire-balling Don Gullett, who limited the Red Sox to just two hits until the ninth inning and then gave way to relief ace Rawly Eastwick, who nailed down the victory by striking out Rico Petrocelli on three pitches.

The Reds were teasing Perez about his Series' long slump before Game 5 Thursday night. Manager Sparky Anderson called Cincinnati's all-time runs batted in leader aside in the dressing room and tried a little psychology with the big guy.

"I told him that if he went hitless for seven games, he could set a record for himself," said

Dice is a form of gambling and picking a 48-man travel squad for Nebraska's game at Oklahoma State Saturday fits the same category.

Coach Tom Osborne won't know until sometime before the Huskers are scheduled to leave on their jet charter to Stillwater at 1:15 p.m. Friday whether he'll have defensive end Bob Martin and fullback Dodie Donnell.

Martin remained hospitalized Thursday with a knee infection, Osborne reported, but the swelling in the knee has been reduced. "Hopefully, when the improvement comes it will come fast," Osborne said.

Should Martin not travel, his spot in the starting lineup will be filled by Dave Hedding and Tom Coccia will fill his spot on the road trip.

Donnell has been sick this week and a decision on his availability will be made Friday morning. He's the No. 3 fullback, but is a valuable member of the kickoff, kickoff return and punt coverage teams.

The fact that tight end Larry Mushinski has a groin pull, plus the fact the Huskers use some two-tight-end sets, might result in Osborne deciding to take Ken Spaeth, a tight end, rather than Donnell.

Work in practice this week has concentrated on getting some of the players ready for duty at more than one position so the Huskers will be protected in event of injuries.

Here are the dual workers. The positions in parentheses are the alternate ones:

Defensively, Jerry Wied would become the third middle guard, Dan Brock the third left tackle and George Mills the third right tackle. Ted Harvey can play both cornerback spots and safety.

"I don't know what it is," he says, "but year in and year out, Southeast seems to play its best against us."

"It's gotten to the point where it makes their season if they beat us," Zentz observes. "Maybe another reason they get so high for us in our school districts are so close together."

"I've felt they've been a good club all along," Zentz says of the Knights. "They're always a good, scrappy defensive team with good technique and well-coached."

"I've told him his sons, Victor and Eduardo, could tell everybody about their father's record."

Perez shook his head at the Reds' manager.

"I don't want that record," he said.

When Perez unloaded his first homer, and first hit of this Series, in the fourth inning, Anderson did a little more teasing.

"I told him, 'You disappointed the world,'" said Anderson.

Perez said he wasn't worried about the deep slump he was in.

"I have been 0-for-14 before. I knew I would snap out of it sometime." Perez struck out in the second inning, making it 0-for-15 before he finally broke the dry spell.

"Now we're so close you feel you can reach out and touch it," said Bench. "To win this Series means so much to the fans and to the ballclub. It has been so long."

"We don't want to play Sunday," said Gullett, who had one point retired 16 in a row between the first and sixth innings.

"I told him that if he went hitless for seven games, he could set a record for himself," said

"He was due." So spoke Petrocelli, obviously referring to Perez.

"Tonight," said Petrocelli, the Red Sox veteran third baseman, "We felt our task was to keep the ball in the ballpark — keep everything catchable. But it's tough keeping a guy like Perez shut out like that. He was due, that's all."

Despite the loss which put the Red Sox on the brink of total defeat in the series, the mood in the Boston clubhouse was anything but gloomy. The prospect of a return home to Fenway Park obviously brightened the losers' spirits.

"You don't see a sad face in here do you?" said Dwight Evans, who had one of the five Red Sox hits. "They're a good club, sure, but we know we can beat them at our own ballpark."

"I never saw it," said Denny Doyle of Bench's single. "The ball was about six inches outside and it seemed to come right out of Bench's uniform. I just reacted on what I thought I saw, he fell so far across the plate."

"That's never happened to me before — at least on an outside pitch."

All the Red Sox, however, were impressed by Gullett's pitching performance even though the 24-year-old left-hander was knocked out in the ninth on a pair of singles and Fred Lynn's run-scoring double.

"He pitched a helluva game," said Carl Yastrzemski. "You can't take anything away from him. He threw more sliders here than he did against us in Boston, but most important, he got his pitches where he needed them."

Added Petrocelli: "They out-hit us and Gullett outpitched us — that's all. Tomorrow it's a new day and they still have to win that fourth game at our ballpark."

Lincoln Southeast Friday night hopes to play the role promoted in a popular razor blade commercial. The Knights would like to be "The Spoiler."

Since they're 3-3 and out of contention for a state playoff berth, the Knights can salvage a great measure of pride in spoiling unbeaten Lincoln East's chances.

Despite the disparity in records, the game is rated fairly even Friday night at Seacrest Field. It's the Knights' homecoming and East coach Lee Zentic is fully aware of all upset possibilities.

"I don't know what it is," he says, "but year in and year out, Southeast seems to play its best against us."

"It's gotten to the point where it makes their season if they beat us," Zentic observes. "Maybe another reason they get so high for us is our school districts are so close together."

Omaha — For a team expected to be in the thick of the state tennis title chase, Lincoln High almost exited from Dewey Park Thursday without qualifying anyone for Friday's semifinal and final matches.

Both defending Class A champion Larry Rugg and doubles partners Max Brandt and Casey Lien were forced to split sets by unseeded opponents in quarterfinal matches before finally prevailing.

And the two matches were going on simultaneously, keeping Links coach Chuck Friesen on the run.

With Lincoln High winning all of its first-day matches and co-favorite Southeast doing the same, the stage was set for a showdown between the two powers, identical to last year's that resulted in a tie for the title.

Southeast Advances

Unlike the Links, Southeast coasted to all four of its first-day triumphs. Randy Johnson dispatched Omaha Central's Bob Johnson (6-0, 6-1) and Millard's Tom Rives (6-3, 6-0), while the doubles team of Jim Perry and Mark Kramer defeated Grand Island's Larry Phillips and Doug Miller (6-4, 6-2 and Burke's Steve Hubbard and Jay Sage, 6-2, 6-1).

Defeating Grand Island's Ron Powell (6-3, 6-0, in the first round, Rugg ran into Omaha Westside's Bob Cassman, who didn't give up quite so easily.

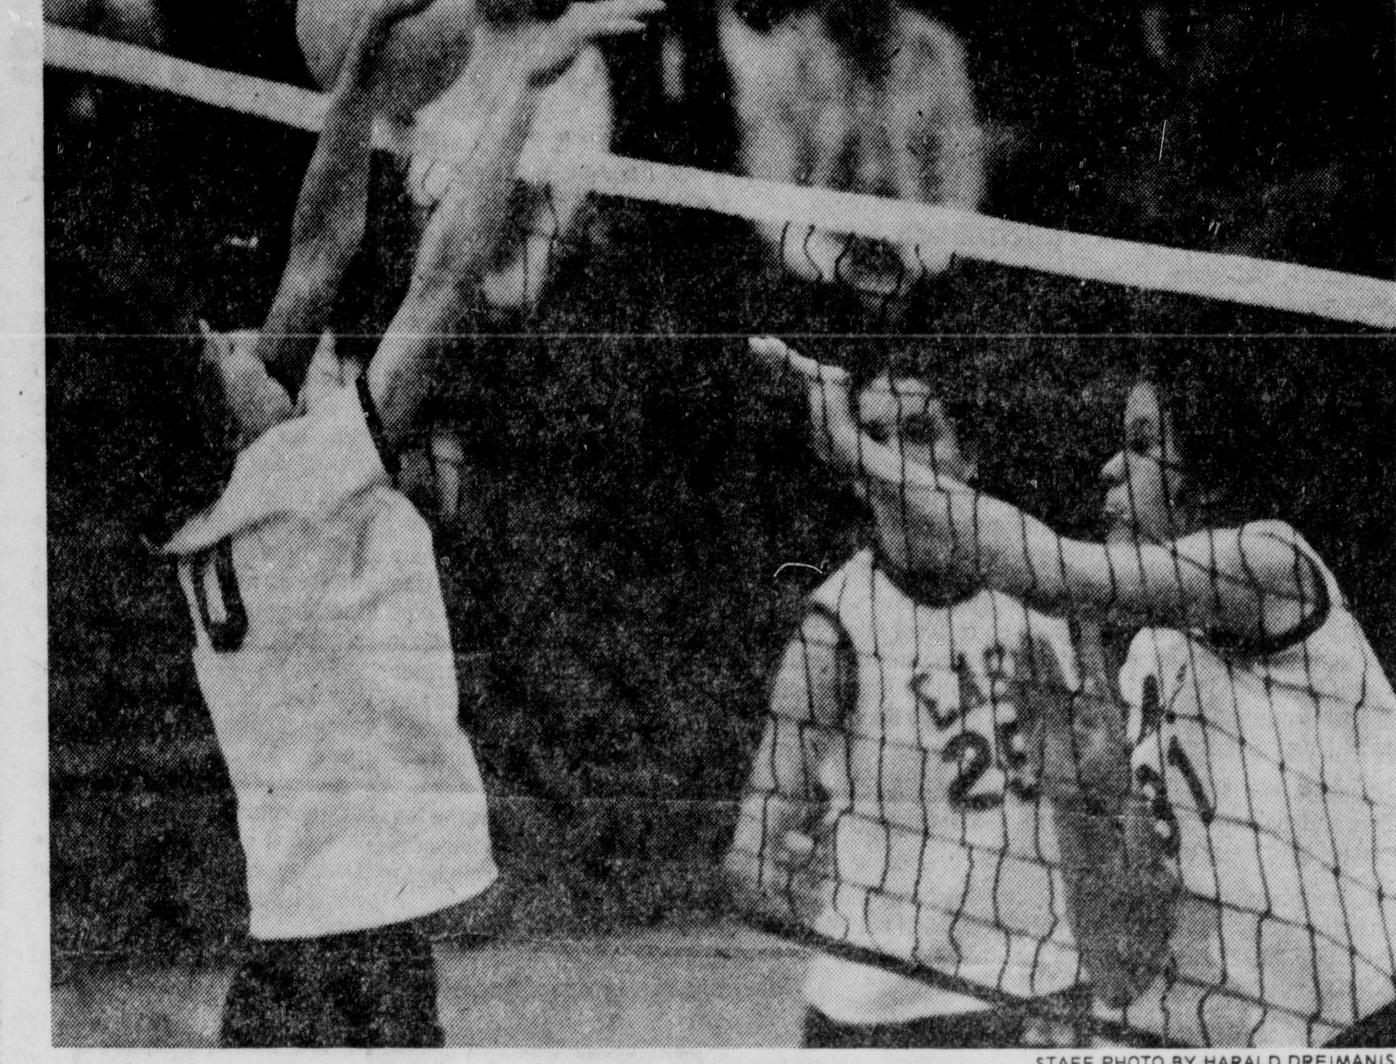

Like the match with Powell, Rugg had Cassman down 6-3 after the first set, but Cassman battled back to reverse Rugg 5-0 in the second before winning 6-3.

Rugg collected himself and shut out Cassman 6-0 in the final set.

Momentum Switch

The talented Link senior didn't attribute Cassman's success to any faltering of his own, but to a momentum switch.

"He just played really well in the second set, I didn't play any worse than in the other LNE's Jane Bates (10, left) successfully blocks a spike of East's Barb Hart (31) as Mary Herrington (25) watches.

Huskers By A Touchdown

Nebraska, Oklahoma, Colorado and Kansas will win Big Eight Conference football games Saturday, but only Oklahoma will have an easy time of it. The Sooners will whip Kansas State 41-7.

Nebraska will find Oklahoma State's defensive team more unyielding than it was last week when Missouri romped 41-14. The Huskers, though, will win again 17-10. It's the first road game for Nebraska. The last time Coach Tom Osborne took a team to Stillwater the result was a disappointing 17-17 tie.

Kansas will get its wishbone untracked against Iowa State, but the Jayhawks will find the Cyclones tough customers in a 21-17 victory. It's a game that will be seen on regional television.

Husker fans who aren't headed for Stillwater can watch that one while listening to the NU-USU game on radio. Highlights of the Husker game will be shown on the ABC College Football '75 show at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Colorado and Missouri will put on an offensive show at Boulder and the Buffaloes will win 23-21. The last eight games in this series have been won by the home team.

Kansas State, incidentally, has beaten Oklahoma only two times in the last 40 years. The victories were by 59-21 in 1969 and 19-14 in 1970. Since then, Oklahoma has averaged a 62-11 winning margin over the Wildcats.

'Holding' In Big Ten?

Michigan coach Bo Schembechler this week charged that college football officials are ignoring offensive holding in the line and suggested that the middle guard would disappear on defense because of lack of protection against the violations.

That brought a wry remark from former Nebraska footballer Herm Rohrig, who is supervisor of Big Ten officials: "Next week, the coaches will be complaining about all the offensive holding calls."

Woody Hayes, Ohio State coach, might have been more discreet than Schembechler. He refused to comment on the grounds "I'm afraid the officials might start watching my players more closely."

Anyway, holding or not, Ohio State will trample Wisconsin 48-7 and Michigan will stop Northwestern 25-10. In other Big 10 tests, Purdue will lose its sixth in a row, this time to Illinois 31-18, Michigan State will blank Minnesota 30-0 and Iowa will grease the skids for Lee Corso at Indiana 21-14.

A card from Howard Vosika of Lincoln reminded me I overlooked Ohio State as one of the nation's remaining unbeaten teams and added: "If you'd like to see Nebraska use the quick-kick, just dig up the pre-Devaney game films. Some of us have no fond memories of quick-kicking as part of football."

Oklahoma executed Joe Washington's 76-yard quick-kick against Texas by quarterback Steve Owens' pitchout. When Barry Switzer played center at Arkansas, he said he used to snap the ball between the quarterback's legs to the fullback, who he said averaged 46 yards on "about 40 quick kicks." None were blocked.

Picking The Other Games

Here are my selections in the other major games across the country Saturday:

Southeastern: Alabama over Tennessee, Florida over Florida State, Georgia Tech over Auburn, Georgia over Vanderbilt, LSU over Kentucky, Mississippi over South Carolina, Mississippi State over North Texas State.

Southwest: SMU over Rice, Texas A&M over TCU, Texas over Arkansas, Miami of Florida over Houston, Arizona over Texas Tech.

Pacific-8: Southern California over Oregon, Stanford over Washington, UCLA over Washington State, California over Oregon State.

East: Brown over Dartmouth, Harvard over Cornell, Navy over Boston College, Penn State over Syracuse, Pittsburgh over Army, Princeton over Colgate, Yale over Columbia, Rutgers over William & Mary.

South: Duke over Clemson, Maryland over Wake Forest, North Carolina over North Carolina State, Virginia Tech over Virginia, West Virginia over Tulane, Memphis State over Louisville.

West: Notre Dame over Air Force, New Mexico over Utah, San Diego State over New Mexico State, San Jose State over Pacific, Wyoming over Texas-El Paso, Utah State over Weber State, Arizona State over Colorado State.

Slippery Rock ended its two-game losing streak last week and will continue its winning ways against Waynesburg. The Rockets are now 2-3 for the season.

First Round Lead To Barber, Morgan

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Miller Barber birdied four of the last five holes Thursday and tied Gil Morgan for the first round lead in the $125,000 Texas Open golf tournament with a six-under-par 66.

Barber, the only professional besides Jack Nicklaus to win at least one tournament eight consecutive years, needs the $25,000 first prize to make it nine in a row. Nicklaus has won tournaments 14 years in a row.

Morgan, an optometrist from Wewoka, Okla., finished in a tie for fifth in the Texas Open last year. He needs a high finish to move into the top 60 money winners, which would qualify him for regular all stops on the 1976 professional tour.

Knight-East Game on TV

Friday's intra-city football game between Lincoln East and Lincoln Southeast will be shown on a delayed cablecast on Lincoln's channel 9.

Prep Panorama, featuring an interview with unbeaten Lincoln Northeast cross country runner Burt Thompson, is set for 11 p.m. with the game following at 11:10 p.m.

Double-Bogey Propels Curry To State Title

By CHUCK SINCLAIR
Prep Sports Writer

Omaha — Cathy Curry knew she had it made when she double-bogeyed the opening hole of the State High School Girls' Golf Tournament at Benson Park Thursday.

"That didn't bother me because I always double-bogey the first hole in tournaments," Curry said. "I knew I could get enough birdies to make up for it."

The Columbus junior not only gathered enough birdies, she made up the difference plus three shots and took medalist honors over playing partner Theresa Wanek of Omaha Marian and North Platte's Valerie Skinner by shooting a 2-under-par 76.

It was only fitting that the top three returners and finishers from last year would again be in the top three.

The only difference was Curry switched places with Skinner, who won a year ago but tied with Wanek this year before losing the playoff on the first extra hole.

Wanek, the only senior of the three, remained in second place while her team matched last year's first place finish totaling 359 strokes, an eight-shot margin over the nearest finisher.

Wanek had the early lead, turning the front nine in 2-under-par 37, but skied to a 42 on the back nine.

Skinner suffered the opposite fate, turning the front in 43 and the back with a 3-under-par 36 including an eagle 3 on the eleventh hole.

Skinner, who was celebrating her 15th birthday, tapped in a two-inch putt for the eagle on the par 5.

Curry's 76, and a fifth-place 86 by teammate Karin Saalfeld, was good enough to propel the Discoverer team into second place behind Marian with a 367 total.

Marian's Julie Merwald and Marion Slattery added 91 and 92, respectively, while Sarah Merwald shot 97 to aid the Metro team to its back-to-back titles.

Lincoln Southeast, led by a sophomore Sue Hergert, finished in sixth place at 397, one shot behind Trans-Nebraska Conference champion Grand Island.

Consistency from Southeast's other three competitors helped the Knights advance three positions from last year's finish as sophomore Courtney Herman posted a 101, Peggy Schnieber a 102 and Cheryl Frederick a 103.

Lincoln's other entries, Plus X and Northeast, finished with 504 and 507, respectively.

Husker Defense Tops All Big 8 Categories

Kansas City (AP) — Nebraska is doing it all on defense.

The Cornhuskers lead all four major statistical departments in the Big Eight Conference. Nebraska's five opponents have been able to gain only 415 yards on 103 rushing attempts on an average of 83 yards a game. Oklahoma, with a game average yield of 125.4 yards, is second, and Colorado, 131 yards, is third.

The Huskers and Iowa State have each allowed only 38 pass completions but Nebraska has been the stingiest on yardage gained. Husker foes tried 91 passes but gained only 428 yards or an average of 85.2 yards. Iowa State's game average is 102.8 yards and Missouri and Colorado are tied for third, each giving up an average of 111.2 yards a game.

In total defense, Nebraska opponents have gained only 841 yards on 264 attempts or a 168.2-yard game average. Next are Oklahoma, 241.6 yards, and Colorado, 242.2.

Nebraska has had only 37 points scored against it for a 7.4-point average. Kansas has permitted an average of 10.2 points and Kansas State 11.8.

Oklahoma is out front in two offensive categories, rushing and scoring. The Sooners, undefeated like Nebraska, have rushed 336 times for 1521 yards or 304.2 yards a game. Colorado's rushing average is 293.2 and Oklahoma State's 285.6.

The Sooners have scored 173 points, average 34.6 points a game, and are followed by Nebraska, 158 points for 31.6, and Colorado, 156 for 31.2.

Fans Disgust U.S. Track Coach

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Head U.S. track coach Roy Griak, stopping briefly to watch 16-year-old Chandra Cheesborough score a thrilling victory in the women's 200 meters, Thursday said the morale of his team had suffered at the poor treatment they had received from Mexican fans attending the Pan American Games.

"The last straw came Wednesday when fans lining the route of the 20-kilometer walk pushed and shoved Todd Scully (Big Island, Va.)," said Griak, of Minneapolis, Minn. "There was no police control. Things like that have to leave a bad impression."

Scully finished fifth in the race in which Mexicans placed 1-2 with Daniel Bantista the winner. Larry Young was third and gave the thumbs down signal on the victory podium when the fans broke out in jeers as he stepped up to receive his bronze medal.

James King, the 400 meter intermediate hurdle gold medalist from San Diego, said, "the team with officialdom when the track jury rejected a protest which was filed Wednesday when it was discovered Cuba's Julian Morrison, the silver medalist behind John Powell, had used his own disc in contravention of the rules.

Officials told the U.S. manager, Richard Hollander, there were two choices open to him: withdraw the protest or let the result stand. Then, by unanimous vote, they decided to reject the protest.

Powell, the world record holder from Cupertino, Calif., said he was ready to throw again, and was angry at the official verdict.

Powell, the world record holder from Cupertino, Calif., said he was ready to throw again, and was angry at the official verdict.

De Costa, who attended the protest hearings as a supervisor, said "In my report to the IAAF, I shall say that the event should have been rerun."

Miss Cheesborough's win was the only one by a U.S. athlete in the four track finals. Silvina Chivas of Cuba led coming out of the turn, and when she began to fade, the Jacksonville junior surged to the front and held off fast finishing teammate Pamela Jiles of New Orleans, the dash winner, to win by 4.100ths of a second in 22.77 seconds. Her time was a new Games record, bettering the 23.5 effort of Stephanie Berto of Canada four years ago.

But Miss Cheesborough's moment of glory turned sour on the victory podium when she was awarded the silver medal.

Officials who line the winners up for the match to the podium, had placed the girls in the wrong order. The medals were presented, and when the girls returned to the stands, they were told of the error.

The two Americans exchanged their medals, then Miss Jiles, 20, went off crying. "I feel terrible," she said between sobs. She thought she had won the sprint double.

Ted Castaneda of Colorado Springs ran with heart and spirit but finished only second in the 5,000 meters won by Colombia's Domingo Tibudua in 14:02.2; Larry Brown of Jersey City was nearly five meters adrift in the men's 200 meter final taken by James Gilkes of Guyana in 20.43, while Gale Fitzgerald of East Orange, N.J., could not beat Canada's Diane Jones in the 200 meters and had to settle for the silver medal in the women's two-day, five-event, pentathlon. Miss Jones scored 4,673 points.

The U.S. and Cuba split the two field event finals. Tom Woods, the AAU champion from Corvallis, Ore., won the men's high jump with a Games record 7 feet 4 1/4 inches, to break the old mark of 7-2 1/4 set by Ed Caruthers in 1971, and Cuba's big Maria Sarria Gano won the women's shot with a heave of 39-1 1/4 inches, to beat the '71 record 39-0.

Life Sentence For Death Of Infant Upheld

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday affirmed the life sentence imposed on a Niobrara youth for the stabbing death of an infant two years ago.

The high court also upheld the kidnapping convictions of two men in a case involving a Blair policeman. In a third opinion, the court upheld the Douglas County District Court's decision of 1948 to accept two second-degree murder guilty pleas from life-term Charles McClelland.

Attorneys for Antonio Laravia of Niobrara appealed the life sentence he received from the Knox County District Court for the death of Chad Wilson, 2, Niobrara, in 1973. The attorneys contended the sentence was excessive because he was only 15 years old at the time of the slaying.

Jury Trial Claim Rejected

The Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday rejected the claim of Ernest Young of Omaha that he was entitled to a jury trial in the Douglas County District Court on a second offense of drunken driving.

Young was found guilty of the charge in municipal court and appealed to the district court. The district court affirmed the conviction after which Young appealed to the Supreme Court, claiming his constitutional rights

The court's unanimous opinion said that "in spite of the defendant's youth, the record fully supports the action of the district court in imposing a maximum sentence of life imprisonment."

The court cited as "overwhelming support" for the life term Laravia's previous record, which the court said had 42 entries in six years. The first entry, the court said, was an incident in which he threatened three children with a knife. McClelland's guilty pleas were entered in the deaths of Robert May and his wife, residents of Virginia, whose bodies were found Aug. 28, 1947, in some bushes near Boys Town.

McClelland's appeal, filed under the Post-Conviction Relief Act, sought to have the two convictions set aside on grounds that the guilty pleas were fraudulently induced.

The Supreme Court said it could find no evidence to support the inducement claim and in fact everything pointed in exactly the opposite direction.

The court said McClelland, who was 17 years old at the time, gave the county attorney several confessions and from court records it appeared he was "determined to plead guilty" as based on the testimony of his own attorney.

Among the confessions was one McClelland gave to Colorado prison officials while he was being held at the Canon City penitentiary. Court records said McClelland wrote the confession in long hand and then tried to take his own life by drinking a cleaning solution.

Billy Boyce and Gary Saltzman were convicted of kidnapping in connection with an incident on Oct. 27, 1974, in which the two tried to force a Blair policeman at gunpoint to tell them where the county attorney lived. The two men told the policeman they wanted to "pay him (County Attorney Roy Anderson) back" for everything he had ever done to them.

Boyce and Saltzman were sentenced to prison terms of 5 to 15 years.

When the officer told the men he didn't know where Anderson lived, he was forced into his cruiser and the three drove around town to try and locate the Anderson residence. The efforts were fruitless and the officer was later released.

Boyce and Saltzman were sentenced to prison terms of 5 to 15 years.

Life Sentence For Death Of Infant Upheld

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday affirmed the life sentence imposed on a Niobrara youth for the stabbing death of an infant two years ago.

The high court also upheld the kidnapping convictions of two men in a case involving a Blair policeman. In a third opinion, the court upheld the Douglas County District Court's decision of 1948 to accept two second-degree murder guilty pleas from life-term Charles McClelland.

Attorneys for Antonio Laravie of Niobrara appealed the life sentence he received from the Knox County District Court for the death of Chad Wilson, 2, Niobrara, in 1973. The attorneys contended the sentence was excessive because he was only 15 years old at the time of the slaying.

Jury Trial Claim Rejected

The Nebraska Supreme Court Thursday rejected the claim of Ernest Young of Omaha that he was entitled to a jury trial in the Douglas County District Court on a second offense of drunken driving.

Young was found guilty of the charge in municipal court and appealed to the district court. The district court affirmed the conviction after which Young appealed to the Supreme Court, claiming his constitutional rights

The court's unanimous opinion said, that "in spite of the defendant's youth, the record fully supports the action of the district court in imposing a maximum sentence of life imprisonment."

The court cited as "overwhelming support" for the life term Laravie's previous record, which the court said had 42 entries in six years. The first entry, the court said, was an incident in which he threatened three children with a knife. McClelland's guilty pleas were entered in the deaths of Robert May and his wife, residents of Virginia, whose bodies were found Aug. 28, 1947, in some bushes near Boys Town.

McClelland's appeal, filed under the Post-Conviction Relief Act, sought to have the two convictions set aside on grounds that the guilty pleas were fraudulently induced.

The Supreme Court said it could find no evidence to support the inducement claim and in fact everything pointed in exactly the opposite direction.

The court said McClelland, who was 17 years old at the time, gave the county attorney several confessions and from court records it appeared he was "determined to plead guilty" as based on the testimony of his own attorney.

Among the confessions was one McClelland gave to Colorado prison officials while he was being held at the Canon City penitentiary. Court records said McClelland wrote the confession in long hand and then tried to take his own life by drinking a cleaning solution.

Billy Boyce and Gary Saltzman were convicted of kidnapping in connection with an incident on Oct. 27, 1974, in which the two tried to force a Blair policeman at gunpoint to tell them where the county attorney lived. The two men told the policeman they wanted to "pay him" (County Attorney Roy Anderson) back" for everything he had ever done to them.

When the officer told the men he didn't know where Anderson lived, he was forced into his cruiser and the three drove around town to try and locate the Anderson residence. The efforts were fruitless and the officer was later released.

Boyce and Saltzman were sentenced to prison terms of 5 to 15 years.

THE JACKSON TWINS

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
AXYDLBAAXR
is LONG FELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Wishing Well®

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message letters under the checked figures give you.
